The boy was taken Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff, then transferred to Missouri Delta Community Hospital at Sikeston and later to Dexter Memorial Hospital.

Close energy votes expected in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some very close votes are being predicted in Congress this week as the legislators confront the energy problem with oil price controls scheduled to expire Aug. 31.

The majority leaders of both houses indicated they expect some movement in Congress to cope with the scheduled expiration, which would lead to a relatively fast increase in the price of gasoline and other petroleum products.

Speaker Carl Albert told reporters today the prospects for work on energy legislation this week are "lots of headaches and effort and hopefully some results."

The House will consider a resolution to disapprove President Ford's proffered compromise and also may try to write some form of compromise on oil prices and decontrol into the energy bill it is considering.

Speaker Albert said additional compromise efforts are possible.

The House also will vote Tuesday on President Ford's veto of a $2 billion health program authorization bill.

The Senate voted 67 to 15 Saturday to override. For a bill to be enacted into law despite a presidential veto, each house must re-pass it by at least two-thirds majority.

Soon after Albert told newsmen of the plan for a veto vote, Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., appealed to the House to override.

"President Ford's vetoes now go across the board," O'Neill said. "He has said no to jobs, no to housing, no to energy, no to education and health. You name it, he's vetoed it ..."

O'Neill said Sunday on CBS' "Face the Nation" that he thinks Congress will reject Ford energy compromise proposal and adopt its own similar measures.

O'Neill said an amendment similar to what the President has suggested will be proposed this week and he expects it to win approval. And, he said he anticipates that with such an amendment, Ford will agree to a temporary extension of current controls.

It will be very close, whether the amendment is passed, O'Neill said.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said on NBC's "Meet the Press" that he thinks there is a "50-50 chance" that Congress will accept President Ford's compromise proposal to remove controls over 39 months.

Congress must consider Ford's plan this week. If Congress does nothing by Friday, the administration's program goes into effect automatically.

If nothing is done, "then it means controls will go off ... and prices for gasoline will skyrocket," Mansfield said.

"Th only alternativa wvuld be a three-to-six-months' extension of present controls" qhile anotheruplan can be worked out, he said.

Currently so-called old oil, that produced from wells in oper2tion before 1972, is frozen at $5.25 a barrel. It makes up about 60 per cent of the oil produced in the United States. New oil, not controlled, sells for more than $11 a barrel.

Ford has proposed ending these price controls to encourage more oil exploration and development, and the battle has been over this point. Ford's compromise proposal calls for easing the controls gradually over 39 months, with a top limit of $11.50 a barrel during that period. He also has proposed a windfall profits tax levied on the oil companies' added profits as a result of their higher prices and encouraging the companies to plow the money back into oil exploration.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader issued a statement Sunday opposing Ford's plan, saying it will only add money to the coffers of the oil companies. And Nader said members of Congress who have private interests in gas and oil should disqualify themselves from voting on this legislation.

In other Congressional action, as the legislators try to clear the decks for their August vacation beginning at the end of the week, the arms embargo against Turkey is expected to be a major item of discussion, although O'Neill said he doubts that it will come up again for House action this week.

Lela Hayes, 64, of 1405 Davis St., New Madrid was treated for scratches and bruises and released at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

She was struck at 7:25 p.m. by a car driven by Richard Raymond Hillyard, 36, of 722 Kendall St.

Police said the accident occurred when Hillyard was turning west onto West Malone Avenue from South New Madrid Street, was blinded by the sun, and failed to see the woman as she walked across the street. She told police she was unable to get out of the way after she saw the approaching car.

No arrests were made, police said.

2 killed, 21 hurt in area

Two teen-agers were killed and 21 injured -- one critically -- in 12 area traffic accidents over the weekend, the highway patrol reported today. The two fatalities raised the death toll on Missouri roads this year to 55, compared to 62 at the same time in 1974.

A Campbell youth was killed in a single-vehicle accident at 6 a.m. Sunday on Route WW two miles north of Campbell.

The highway patrol said the accident was not discovered until 8:30 a.m., about two and a half hours later.

WHERE HAVE ALL THE LIBERALS GONE?

In recent years, the smallest whiff of American scandal has elicited tremendous denunciation by the country's liberal intellectuals. The agonizing years of Vietnam and Watergate, alleged excesses by the CIA, and our current economic problems all have given them a field day.

Today, however, the major scandals facing the world come not from the United States and its allies,but rather from leftist forces who have seized power or are in the process of doing so in various countries. An entire Cambodian population was herded, like cattle, into a desolate countryside, where many thousands perished. A leftist junta in Portgual wiped out civil liberties wholesale. Citizens of India, formerly the world's largest democracy, lost their freedoms practically overnight under the goading of Indira Gandhi by the Soviet Union.

The response to these excesses by America's liberals can best be described as a deafening silence. Where are our liberal intellectuals — those self-proclaimed purveyors of the public conscience — now, when we really need them? Where are the newspaper pundits and network commentators, and where are the full-page ads signed by all those professors?

Jeffrey Hart, who writes a syndicated column for King Features, recently noted the absence of liberal protest over the situation in Portgual and asked what would have happened if the suppression had been perpetrated instead by a right-wing military regime. "There would be editorials, conferences and demands for boycott," answers Hart. "The halls of Congress and the United Nations would resound with speeches. Amnesty International would issue indignant statements. Movies on the order of 'Z' would be produced, Heartrending accounts of torture would appear everywhere."

Regarding the barbarity of the Khmer Rouge communist regime in Cambodia, Hart adds: "Once again, where is the fabled 'international conscience?' Where have all the ad hoc committees gone? ... The truth is that (the liberals) seem to be capable of indignation only over outrages perpetrated by the right, and numb to outrages by the left. This bias is so pervasive that now it is taken for granted and has become invisible to those who participate in it."

We could not agree more with Professor Hart. The duplicity and double standard of these liberal influence-peddlers has been convincingly unmasked by their silence. It's a lesson we can't afford to forget the next time their poisonous pens are again unleashed on America.

The same two designs will be used by both nations on stamps that will be identical in both countries, except for language and denomination — 10 cents for the U.S. stamp and 12 kopecks for the Soviet.

THE BASIC FREEDOM: A FREE PRESS

The use of subpoena processes and contempt citations to force journalists to divulge confidential information they have obtained in the course of gathering the news has increased markedly in recent years.

Between January and April of this year alone, courts around the country issued no less than 56 subpoenas against newspeople. Reporters have been jailed. Just as serious, "gag orders" to prevent the reporting of court proceedinggs—even those open to the public—have risen from only two in 1966 to at least 28 in 1974.

Legal costs and trial expenses are such that the mere threat of court action can act as a restraint on the practical freedom of the press, says the Reporters committee on Freedom of the Press, an organization of working journalists in print and broadcasting founded in 1970.

While many public-spirited attorneys have donated their services to defend newspeople, the rising number of cases has made a fund campaign necessary.

Thus the committee has launched a two-year drive to set up a "First Amendment Research and Defense Fund" to help pay the costs of legal research and defense services for the working press of all media.

In accepting the chairmanship of the campaign, Arthur R. Taylor, president of CBS, Inc., said:

"On every side the press is faced with increasing litigation and other censorship efforts in the courts, legislatures and executive agencies on the local, state and federal levels. We believe the time has come for the news media to establish a centralized research, information and legal defense clearing house with sufficient manpower and financial resources to inform the public of the increasing legal threats to First Amendment freedoms and to aid reporters, ediitors and news organizations who want to fight back in the courts."

The alarmingly successful effort by some government officials to misuse the power of the subpoena and the court order to silence the flow of information through the press to the public has resulted in recent years in "the cumulative erosion of press freedom as never before witnessed under our Constitution," he claims.

The present threat, he says, is a "quieter, subtler and certainly clumsy but well-publicized attacks on the press by high government officials in the recent past.

Ever since the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1972, that the First Amendment does not grant newsmen the general right to withhold information from grand juries, even if obtained during legitimate newsgathering activities. Sometimes the information bears on legitimate public concerns, sometimes it doesn't

State "shield" laws designed to protect journalists from such efforts have been interpreted so narrowly as to be virtually useless against forced disclosure. The trend already has had a demonstrably chilling effect on the flow of information to the public, he says.

Like most other things, this is not a clear-cut issue. First Amendment rights can and do conflict at times with other rights. And many Americans may feel that this new wave of attacks on the press is a problem affecting journalists alone, that it does not concern the ordinary citizen.

As individuals, of course, reporters have no more rights than anybody else. But as members of the institution of the press, they are serving the interests of society by fulfilling its constitutionally assigned role as the public's ombudsman, as the unofficial fourth branch of government.

It is too often forgotten, says Taylor, that freedom of the press is basic to the rights of all citizens, that without the lines of communication provided by the press to the body politic, the other basic rights of individuals become lifeless extremities.

PROFITS TURNABOUT IS NAME OF OIL GAME

Just 18 months after the oil-producing countries initiated their embargo, the widely heralded push for national energy self-sufficiency seems to have run out of steam.

Except for a new tax law affecting the major American oil companies, Congress has been unable to come up with a longrange, comprehensive energy policy.

Some observers in fact warn that congress's "punitive" measures against the oil industry, such as ending the controversial depletion allowance, will actually work against the goal of increasing the nation's energy supply. Others doubt whether President Ford has any better an idea with his latest buck a barrel increase in the tariff on imported oil.

Even before the new legislation, a combination of circumstances was bringing an end to the embarrassment of riches that began to haunt the oil companies after the Arabs artificially boosted prices. Decreased consumption because of the recession and conservation, a mild winter, price controls and a current worldwide surplus in crude capacity have turned the industry's effort profit boom into a comparative bust.

Few perhaps will shed tears over this turnabout. Yet strangely, little complaint was ever heard about the record profits another basic industry—the steel industry—racked up in 1974 by virtue of a rapid series of price hikes that totalled some 40 per cent for the year.

Even while 1975 first-quarter earnings for all manufacturing industries fell an average of 18 per cent from the same quarter in 1974, the three largest steel producers, Bethlehem, Republic and U.S. Steel, posted profit gains of 86 per cent, 57 per cent and 54 per cent respectively. This in the depths of what was supposed to be the worst economic slump since the 1930s.

In contrast, first-quarter profits of the major oil companies were down an average of 30 per cent. Earnings declines ran as high as 66 per cent for Texaco, 59 per cent for Cities Service and 33 per cent for Gulf.

It has always been difficult to defend the oil industry. Such things as the recent revelation that the last-named company paid millions of dollars in bribes to the officials of certain foreign countries do little to enhance the industry's image.

One estimate, however, is that the oil industry will have to invest more than $300 billion by 1985 in order to discover, produce and deliver the ever-increasing quantities of petroleum products the nation will need in the coming decade. Thus the oilmen's come-uppance in the form of higher taxes and lower profits may not necessarily be gladsome reading for Americans in the not-so-long run.

DON'T BLAME THE FARMER

No one can deny that food prices have gone up. They have—by about 64 per cent between 1953 and 1973. But during the same period, wages increased more than 142 per cent.

Moreover, Americans are spending a smaller percentage of their incomes on food than they did a couple of decades ago. In 1953, food took about 22 per cent of the disposable income. In 1973, it was down to 16 per cent, and the Department of Commerce estimates it was 16.7 per cent in 1974, despite the fact that the consumer price index—the cost of everything—rose nearly 12 per cent.

This is less than in any other country. Worldwide, the percentage of income spent on food runs between 30 and 60 per cent.

According to a report by The Conference Board, New York based economic research organization, total consumer spending (after inflation is subtracted) rose $350 billion, or 75 per cent, in the United States between 1960 and 1973. And while 9 per cent of that increased spending went for food, this compares with 14.5 per cent more spent on luxuries and 15 per cent more spent on automobiles.

Nevertheless, everyone thinks food prices are too high and that somebody is getting rich because of it.

Well, it's not the farmer, according to one source. While farm income has gone up in recent years, it is still low, says F.L. Wooten, vice president of Kaiser Agricultural Ceemicals.

In 1971, median income for all U.S. families was $10,285, he says, but for farm families (and 98 per cent of all farms are familiay operations) it was $5,712. In 1973, farmers earned approximately $3,300 per person, but national per capita income was $5,000.

Then where is the food dollar going?

The farmer receives less than half the money spent for food, says Wooten. In 1973, he got 46 per cent of each food dollar; in 1974, 42 per cent. All indications are that it will be even less this year. The remainder goes for transportation, processing and retailing.

America's farmers remain the world's most productive, feeding more than a quarter of the earth's population. They have played a large part in improving the nation's balance of payments situation and are constantly working to achieve greater efficiency.

For example, in 1960 there were 7.9 million farm workers, each supplying enough food for 25 other persons. In 1974, there were only 4.3 million farm workers, but each provided enough food for himself and 50 additional people.

None of these statistics may do much to ease the pain one experiences while strolling down the supermarket aisle, but at least they may help to put things in better perspective.

NEED TO KNOW MORE

Probably the oil industry is the least known and most talked about of any industry in the country. Knowledge of the industry is limited to the color of the gas pump at a corner service station–that plus a growing awareness of a threatened shortage of oil and gasoline. However, aside from the fuel it provides, the oil industry is a mighty economic asset in terms of jobs, taxes and community prosperity.

The 1973 edition of "The Oil Producing Industry In Your State" reveals that 32 out of the 50 states produce oil and-or natural gas. Some figures give a measure of the value of this activity to these states and to the nation. In 1972, the combined value of oil and natural gas totaled $17.3 billion. Oil and natural gas contributed 54 percent of the total value of all U.S. mineral production. The oil and gas industry in 1972 provided direct employment for 266,744 persons. This, added to the employment in other segments of the petroleum industry, accounts for 1.2 million jobs or 1.4 percent of total U.S. employment. Since the first American oil well was drilled in 1859 in Pennsylvania, the U.S. petroleum industry through 1972 has drilled 2,249,603 wells which have produced 115.4 billion barrels of liquid petroleum and 437 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. In addition to the billions of barrels of oil which the industry has produced to date, potential U.S. petroleum reserves awaiting discovery have been estimated by the U.S. Geological Survey to be more than adequate to satisfy the nation's increasing petroleum energy requirements for the foreseeable future.

These are facts about the U.S. oil and natural gas industries upon which the life of the nation depends and about which many people know very little. This is one reason for failure to recognize the necessity of releasing the brakes of excessive environmentalism and other restrictions that have curbed U.S. oil exploration and production.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS
Nets Block Patriotic Ford Talk

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The major television networks, including the Public Broadcasting Service, have refused to broadcast a conversation with President Ford about America.

Philadelphia businessman Edward J. Piszek, who thought the American people should hear what the President had to say, offered to pay the networks commercial rates to present his views during prime time. Still, the networks rejected the program.

The story of their astonishing arrogance is worth telling, as evidence of the tight control a few network czars exercise over the TV channels. Here are the details:

It has been my lot to expose the blemishes on the American system, But the sight of the morning sun glinting off the Capitol dome still gives me a thrill. I arranged, therefore, to do a Bicentennial television show with President Ford.

He was to give his reflections on the current condition of America, the health or illness of our basic institutions the general outlook for the American experiment after 200 years.

The President talked, quite uplifting I thought, about the enduring values and strengths as he has experienced them over a lifetime of public service.

He spoke about the changes he would like to see. "There has been a tendency of late," he complained, "to herd people together . . . The government is almost overpowering the individual, whether he is a production worker or whether he is a businessman or whether he is a farmer."

Oh, I asked some impertinent question: How did he as a politician defend his profession? Has the presidency become too remote from the people?

After reminding him how the British ambassador had been startled to discover Abraham Lincoln shining his own shoes in the White Houe, I even asked: "Do you shine your own shoes?"

Ford shot right back: "I shined my own shoes for 61 years and I can do it. And I made my own breakfast for most of my lifetime."

The program was non-political, noncontroversial. But all in all, it provided a rather intimate glimpse of the President's faith in the country. I thought it was worthwhile television.

The networks, however, disagreed. This upset Edward Piszek who had offered to help underwrite the production costs. The son of Polish immigrants, he started out with $450 in 1946 and founded Mrs. Paul's Kitchens, Inc. Its sales now exceed $65 million.

For Piszek, the American dream had come true and he was indignant over the attitude of the networks toward a patriotic program. So he tried to buy commercial prime time to present the President. The networks wouldn't sell him the time.

Each network explained, in effect, that it doesn't carry interviews with the President unless he is buoyed up by a supporting cast of network personalities. In other words, it is not so much the President's answers that matter; it's who asks the questions.

Even more incredibly, public television turned down the show. The taxpayers are doling out $46.4 million to public television stations this fiscal year, plus another $9 million for facilities, plus additional funds for specific television shows. Yet the Public Broadcasting Service refused to present, at no cost to the taxpayers, the President talking about the greatness of America.

The explanation, believe it or not, was that the program contained no "hard news," which would justify its inclusion in a line-up that regularly features book reviews and programs about yoga, cooking and chess plays.

The purpose of my conversation with the President was not to make news. Still, there was a time when the opinions of the President of the United States were thought to be news.No holy writ,not even good sense all the time, but always news.

Editors felt that since he was the nation's leader – and since his personality might have something to do with whether there would be peace or war, justice or injustice, order or chaos – even his foggiest notions along with his great concepts were news.

Besides, it was thought that a lot of people were interested in the President and in what he had to say -- not only on matters of state but about sports, bringing up dogs, or even the quality of his daughter's singing voice. And if a President deigned to give an exclusive broadcast interview, well, that was in itself a news event.

That standard apparently expired, at least among the news czars of the television networks. In its place is a new rule -- presidential programs are worthy of a public airing only if (a) they deal with "hard news," and (b) they are conducted by members of a network's news staff.

I have been saying for some time that the government doesn't own the news. Network executives don't own it either and their treatment of President Ford's patriotic comments can only diminish the standing of the free press in America.

Inside Labor
By Victor Riesel

Diamond Jim Type:
From Miami to Manhattan--Anti-Crime Strike Forces Smashing Big Money Rackets

MIAMI, Fla.--You never really leave home when you shuttle between New York's anti-organized crime strike force and the task force operating in this resort-edged town. Only here it's with palm trees.

Of course up in Manhattan it's bigger. Bill Aronwald's New York coordinated crime-smashing team has brought in some 80 heavy convictions since June 1, 1974. The two undercover businesses set up by his task group have gotten 13 grand jury indictments on "the coat side" of the garment area. You know, extortion, hijacking, fencing, shakedowns, perjury, loan-sharking. The whole thing. And on "the trucking side," there are four indictments and lots more nation-shaking exposures coming.

But since I'm a new boy in town down here, I've just gotten around to the 105-count grand jury indictment the other day of a most imaginative labor official who's charged with such archaic embezzling schemes you couldn't be more surprised if you saw the original Diamond Jim Brady strolling down Biscayne Boulevard.

In fact, this is a self-made Diamond Jim. His name is Bernard Rubin. He's the type, which if the charges are true, drags the labor movement back to the tenderloin days of the '20s.

Rubin runs a network of laborer's unions. He lives expansively and expensively. He draws well in the six figures. According to the massive indictment, the biggest and heaviest I've ever encountered, he has rolled it up by "double, triple, quadruple, quintuple etc. billing his unions for the same expenses" according to a source close to the case.

In all he is charged with embezzling $385,000 in union funds.

Rubin drives a Mercedes, owns real estate and a piece of an apartment house. But apparently none have been, according to the anti-crime task force, as lucrative as his Southeast Florida Laborer's District Council, the Concrete Products and Material Yard Workers local 666, and the Laborers Union Local 478. Since he is considered one of the most powerful men in his field here, he also worked for the International.

Frequently, it is charged, he billed all or two or three of his outfits for the same trips. And he does love to travel. Like to Paris, London, San Juan, Hawaii, the Bahamas, New orleans, Boston, New York. And live well, like in Manhattan's posh Park Avenue Regency Hotel. Or the Honolulu Kahala Hilton. That last one was in December 1970.

And, says the indictment, Rubin "caused" the following to pay for his expenses at the December 1970 Educational Conference of the National Foundation of Health, Welfare and Pension Plans, Inc.:

Laborer's Local 666; Laborer's Dade County Trust Fund; Laborer's Palm Beach Trust Fund; and Laborer's Local Union 293 trust fund.

They each paid him close to $2,000 apiece for the same trip, according to the grand jury.

Rubin is a sports fan as well as a devotee of educational seminars. In January 1972, he went to the world championship heavyweight fight in New Orleans. This was the Joe Frazier-Terry Daniels bout. Rubin wasn't even in the prelims. But he did well. Both Local 478 and 666 paid him about $600 each for the taxis, tips, entertainment, meals and four tickets.

And then there was Paris in 1973. You might go to Paris for the Louvre, the ghost of Les Halles or the Eiffel Tower. But like I told you Rubin loves educational conferences. This erudite gathering was the annual Educational Conference run by the Eastern Conference of Health and Welfare Pension Plans. What could be more logical than Paris, France, for a pension parley?

Rubin billed Local 666, Laborer's Dade County Trust Fund and the District Council for over $2,300 apiece. And to even matters he invoiced Local 478 for $53.74.

The indictment, more than a year in the making, describes Rubin's actions as a "pattern of racketeering activities." Very fancy pattern.

There were 88 embezzlement counts. Also failure to retain some records. Also the IRS is in it.

It's ludicrous. And tragic. What makes a Rubin tick? Why the betrayal of his people's trust? Why become the anchor of efforts of national leaders to drag some unions into the 20th century? How many suits can a man wear, how many cars can he drive, how many steaks can he eat–at the same time?

Mexican group on soy study tour

CARUTHERSVILLE — A Mexican government program to provide soy protein foods for low-income persons will move a step nearer to realization as a result of a visit to the United States this week by a team of Mexican nutritionists and food technicians.

Their study trip, arranged by the American Soybean Association (ASA) and the U.S. Department of Agriculture Foreign Agricultural Service, will provide team members with a broad knowledge of the value of soy protein products, according to Jack Tipton of Caruthersville, president of the Missouri Soybean Association.

This knowledge will hopefully help team members implement Mexico's National Food Program, which would provide low-cost nutritious foods based on soy protein on low-income groups, says Tipton.

The National Food Program was formed in 1971 but still is n ot functioning, due to a lack of knowledge of the value of soy protein in dietary planning, he adds.

Team members include representatives from the government public health department, the government department of industry and commerce and the Association of Food Technicians of Mexico.

They will discuss soy protein nutrition and utilization in human foods with soy food experts at Ralston Purina Co. in St. Louis.

In Kansas City, team members will visit C. J. Patterson Co. to discuss use of soy flours in bakery products and possibilities for their use in traditional Mexican foods such as tortillas.

They will also visit Wenger International, a manufacturer of soy protein extrusion equipment in Kansas City, to see the technology which has been developed for soy foods production in this country.

Mexico is a growing market for U.S. soybeans, says Tipton, noting that consumption of soy products has increased fivefold since ASA began market development work there in 1971.

ASA expects the increasing use of soy protein for human consumption in Mexico to continue expanding the market for U.S. soybens soybeans inthat country, Tipton adds.

Three phases for nationwide program announced by Corps

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Rules published Friday in the Federal Register implement a nationwide program by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers to protect the quality of the waters of th United States against environmentally harmful discharges of dredged or fill materials.

While the regulation clarifies and expands for pollution control the long-established Corps jurisdiction, making it parallel to the coverae of EPA, many less harmful activities are excluded to produce a workable program.

The final regulation, which was developed in close cooperation with the Environmental Protection Agency, was published in compliance with an order of he U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia issued on March 27, 1975.

Some 4,500 comments received on the draft regulation published My 6 have been considered in the preparation of the interim final rules.

Assistant secretary of the Army, Victor V. Veysey, announced that the Corps will gradually expand its jurisdiction in a three-phase program over the next two years.

Phase I, effective with Friday's notice in the Federal Register, extends the existing permit procedures now applicable to traditional navigable waters of the United States to also include adjacent wetlands. These wetlands have been identiried as an endangered and valuable resource.

Phase II, effective July 1, 1976, will initiate regulation of discharges of dredged or fill material into primary tributaries of navigable waters of the United States, natural lakes greater than five acres in surface area and their adjacent wetlands.

Phase III, after July 1, 1977, will extend the Corps of Engineers' authority as directed by Congress to regulate discharges of dredge or fill material into other waters generally up to the headwaters, where streams flow les than five cubic feet per second.

Discharges of dredged material and the placement of fill material that are necessary for the construction of any structures in waters of the United States are covered by the progrtam. However, Veysey listed a number of examples of activities which are not included in the program.

No permits will be required for operations other than dredge or fill; for work outside of navigable waters as defined; for normal farming, ranching and forestry operations, such as plowing, seeding, cultivating, and harvesting; for disposal ofdredged or fill material in most manmade canals, such as drainage and irrigation ditches; for dredged or fill for conservation or erosion control in areas outside navigable waters; and maintenance and emergency repairs of dikes, dams, levees, rip-rap, breakwaters and causeways.

The regulation also includes a "grandfather clause" which "permits" dredge or fill projects that were completed by Friday. Additionally, permits will not be required for minor work started prior to publication of Friday's notice and scheduled to be completed by next January

Veysey explained that, while this regulation becomes effective upon its publication, an additional comment period of 90 days and a series of public hearings will be offered throughout the nation so that the public can comemnt further on any of its provisions. These comments will be reviewed and the regulation modified as necessary.

Veysey concluded, "We recognize that this program directed by Congress will result in the federal regulation of many dredged or fill discharge activities which have never before been subject to corps permits or to this degree of beneficial water quality protection. We, therefore, strongly urge the public to review and comment further on this interim final regulation in order that it can be modified, where necessary and legally permissible, to fully address your concerns, desires, goals and objectives."

Pope calls for prayer for peace

CASTLE GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Pope Paul VI says the European Security Conference convening Tuesday in Helsinki, Finland, is a "solemn affirmation" of peace.

In an address to 3,000 people gathered here Sunday at the papal summer retreat, the pontiff called on all men to welcome the conference and asked Christians to pray for it.

What's the law?

The case of the adulterous mother

The attractive Mrs. Jones, as a general proposition, never accepted a proposition except, possibly, "here" and "there." And, when her suspicious husband caught her at it both "here" and "there," and everywhere else, he charged her with adultery, sued for a divorce and, despite the fact that she had been a good and loving mother, demanded custody of their children.

"If he's going to be so narrow-minded," responded Mrs. Jones in court, "he can have his old divorce. But, as to the children, they're mine and they belong with their mother."

"Not when their mother has led the sexy kind of life my wife has led," answered the indignant Mr. Jones. "The fact is, she's had more strange bedfellows than a politician. And, while it might be O.K.for a politician, it's not O.K. for a dutiful mother."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you deprive the sexy Mrs. Jones of her children's custody?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that as a general rule, the sole concern of a court in a divorce action involving the custody of children is the welfare of the children and not the guilt or innocence of the parties to the divorce. To deprive a mother of custody of her children must be based upon clear and convincing evidence that she is an unfit mother. And, in this case, noted the judge, despite her indiscretions, the evidence showed that Mrs. Jones has been a good and loving mother.

How to get daily calcium

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — You often mention the necessity for adults to drink the equivalent of a quart of milk a day. Please tell me how cottage cheese and cheddar cheese compare in terms of ounces to milk for nutritional value. Also, can calcium pills serve the same purpose?

DEAR READER — That remark is in reference to the calcium content of milk. A quart of whole milk contains about a gram of calcium. Fortified low fat and fortified skim milk contain even more calcium. I think most adults need at least a gram of calcium a day.

You can use an equivalent amount of buttermilk or yogurt to get the calcium. A quart of milk is about two pounds. Remember the old adage, "a pint's a pound the world around." In general a pound of cheese; creamed or uncreamed cottage cheese, cheddar cheese, Swiss cheese or American cheese, contains about the same amount of calcium as a pound (pint) of milk.

Since there are many studies suggesting that too much saturated fat can increase your cholesterol and lead to heart disease, it is wise to use fortified skim milk (has more calcium and protein anyway than whole milk), buttermilk or uncreamed cottage cheese. Cheddar, American and similar cheeses are very high in fat and consequently loaded with calories. About half of the fat is saturated fat, so it is not a good choice for a source of calcium if you want to restrict your calories, your fat intake or your saturated fat intake.

Another good source of calcium is canned salmon. A seven-ounce can of salmon, solids and liquids, contains about a half gram of calcium (half of your daily needs). You should eat the bones in the salmon as canned. Sardines with bones contain almost twice as much calcium per ounce. A three-and-a-half-ounce serving will meet about half of the daily one gram recommendation.

Mature bean seeds are a fairly good source. One cup cooked and drained (about 7 ounces) contains nearly a tenth of a gram of calcium.

You don't need to drink all your milk to benefit from its calcium value. You can use milk in food preparation. Milk gravy, puddings and even the milk in bread all count toward meeting the daily calcium needs. And, if you use the non-fat dry milk powder you can add more than the amount called for to reconstitute milk. The added milk powder will increase the calcium and protein in the prepared food without significantly increasing fat or cholesterol. Don't downgrade desserts as all bad. It depends on how they are made, and they are one vehicle that can be used for calcium and protein.

You can get your calcium from tablets. How many tablets you need depends on the type of calcium tablet used. Short of using calcium tablets, milk and milk products remain the main source of calcium for most people. Those who can't use milk for any reason are really handicapped in obtaining their daily calcium needs.

WINNER OF THE GOLD MEDAL OF THE INTERNATIONAL INVENTORS FAIR

SEE HOW ONLY $6 WORTH OF MOTALOY RECONDITIONS YOUR ENGINE—HELPS PREVENT THE NEED FOR $100 RING & VALVE JOB!

Just drop 4 Motaloy tabs into your gas tank... and you've started your engine rebuilding job! Each tab is a scientifically compounded alloy of 9 metals and elements. As you drive, tiny Motaloy particles are released into the fuel. These Motaloy molecules are carried through the fuel line into the combustion chamber ... where the intense heat of ignition activates them to soften, then remove carbon deposits. Then, Motaloy starts metal-plating pitted and worn surfaces of cylinder walls, piston rings, valve seats, and stems.

A SINGLE MOTALOY TREATMENT DOES ALL THIS FOR YOUR ENGINE!

The more you drive, the more protection Motaloy deposits in the form of a fine, anti-friction metal plating that rebuids, smooths, and protects vital surfaces! As Motaloy continues to plate and replate, engine compression is increased without a ring and valve job! Gas mileage improves, your engine eats less oil! And over fifteen years of use by over a million motorists — some of them with cars that have clocked over 100,000 miles after a single Motaloy treatment — prove that Motaloy can keep your engine running younger and peppier ... for years longer!

PROTECTS NEW ENGINES... REJUVENATES OLD ONES!

Getting a new car? Start it off with a Motaloy treatment — 6 dollars of protection that can mean invaluable extra engine life for your car. Can actually help maintain full factory compression for the life of your car... so you'll get better performance for years longer ... and a better trade-in or resale price whenever you decide to sell! And Motaloy's track record on cars that have rolled up 50,000 ... 70,000 ... even 90,000 miles shows fantastic results in improved compression, lower gas and oil consumption, better pickup, smoother running — just as if the engine were years younger! Give you car's engine a new ... and longer ... lease on life with amazing Motaloy! Remember — a single Motaloy treatment lasts for the life of your car! And Motaloy cannot harm even the finest engine in any way!

Here's all you do and you do it only once! Just drop 4 Motaloy Tabs into your gas tank and this single treatment does all this . . .

"About 1960 I put some Motaloy tabs in my gas tank, and I have driven this Mercedez-Benz 135,000 miles since!" L.A.M., Sioux City, Iowa

"About 5 years ago I put Motaloy tablets in my Cadillac. I drove this car 125,000 miles and it never used any oil between changes. 1,500-2,000 miles!" V.V.G., Cincinnati, Ohio

"My Chevrolet had 49,000 miles on it. It had noisy valves and other troubles. Motaloy corrected all this. It is running better than new." L.F.M., Walterboro, S.C.

"After using Motaloy in my Chevrolet my compression increased an average of 31½ pounds per cylinder, which to me is conclusive proof that Motaloy will do everything that is claimed for it." W.P.C., Elkview, West Va.

"My Dodge used one quart of oil every 225 miles. After using Motaloy I drove 1,245 miles and did not have to add any oil." G.W., Cincinnati, Ohio

"Since adding Motaloy I have driven more than 1,500 miles, and I must say that I am amazed about the wonderful results. My gas consumption improved 40% and my oil consumption is practically nil." W.G.K., Fort Atkinson Wash.

TESTS BY TRINITY TESTING LABS PROVE MOTALOY RESULTS!

Radioactive Isotope Tracer Tests Confirm Motaloy's Plating-Action!

...The activation of the Motaloy and the subsequent tracing operations of the activated Motaloy was conducted by an independent research laboratory especially licensed by the Atomic Energy Commission to supervise the industrial application of radioactive isotopes.

Approximate amounts of Activated Motaloy Deposited on the Surfaces (after approx. 60 hours of operation)

Piston Rings	Light
Piston	Light
Cylinder Walls	Light
Intake Valve Face	Very Heavy
Exhaust Valve Face	Heavy
Intake Valve Seat	Heavy
Exhaust Valve Seat	Medium

The above tracing of the radioactive Motaloy is positive proof of the actual transfer of the Motaloy particles from the gasoline tank on to the surfaces of the above surveyed parts of the engine.

TRY MOTALOY AT OUR RISK!

A complete Motaloy package (4 tabs) is only $6.00. Try Motaloy in your car for 30 days, to give its plating action a fair chance. If at the end of that time your car's engine isn't running smoother .. if you aren't using less oil ... if your gas mileage hasn't started to improve (as it will continue to do until you've reached full factory compression) ... if you don't agree that Motaloy has given your engine a new lease on life — just return the empty Motaloy package, and we'll send you back every penny of your purchase price! If you do find Motaloy does all the wonderful things we say it will, tell your friends about it. They'll thank you for spreading the good word!

Household hints

On intricately decorated areas of your wooden furniture, where it may be difficult to apply wax directly, put it on the dust cloth instead. Just moisten the cloth slightly either with a spray or liquid wax, and then polish immediately with a fresh, dry cloth, working if possible with the g rain of the wood.

Wedding bells ring

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith Jr.

Wyman-Smith

ESSEX--Miss Sandra Wyman of Bloomfield and Henry J. Smith Jr., Route One Sikeston, were united in marriage June 20 at the Castor River General Baptist Church. The bridegroom's father officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Wyman, Route Two Essex, and the bridegroom is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Henry Smith Sr., Route One Sikeston.

The bride wore a gown of polyester crepe. The dress was styled with a fitted waistline, a V-neckline accented with ruffles and an inset at the waistline covered with motifs. A full A-line skirt was attached to a cathedral-length train overlaid with re-embroidered organza. Wide cuffs ended full Bishop sleeves of organza.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Juanita Wyman of DeSoto and junior bridesmaid was Lisa McGarity of Essex.

Warnie Smith of Bettendorf, Iowa, was best man and groomsman was Donald Ritch of Gray Ridge. Ushers were Kenneth Anderson of Sikeston and Samuel Wyman of DeSoto.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the church.

Mrs. Smith is a 1966 graduate of Richland High School and received a bachelor's degree in elementary education from Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau in 1970. She teaches at Bloomfield Elementary School.

Smith is a 1964 graduate of Sikeston High School. He received a bachelor's degree in business education in 1972 and a master's degree in teaching business education this year from SeMo State University. He is employed with SeMo Skills Center affiliated with Sikeston Public Schools.

The couple lives on Route One Sikeston.

Teen-aged mothers face many dangers

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Educators from across the country are here this week reviewing the dangerous odds that accompany pregnancies among young teen-agers.

Studies have shown, for example, that the maternal death rate for girls 15 and under is considerably higher than for more mature women; the baby is more likely to be very small; there is a greater likelihood of maternal complications; there is a greater chance of birth defects or developmental problems.

The five-day Institute on Maternal and Newborn Health is being cosponsored by the Center for the Family of the American Home Economics Association and the National March of Dimes foundation.

Dr. Howard N. Jacobson, institute co-chairman and a professor at Rutgers Medical School, said complete prenatal care seems to make a difference in the health of both mother and child. At one Dallas hospital without complete prenatal care, he said, one of every five babies born to mothers under 15 years of age weighed less than 5½ pounds.

He estimated that one or two babies in 100 may be that small where complete services are available.

Nutrition, good medical care and assistance for the mother to stay in school are important factors, he said. "When the circumstance is accepted by the family and she comes in for services worked out in co-operation with her parents and the father, there's a certain amount of emotional security."

Gabriel Stickle, vice president of the National March of Dimes, said society is not placing enough emphasis on prenatal malnutrition. He said the Ford administration is calling for curtailing a federally funded food supplement program for medically indigent women in clinics.

Household hints

To tell whether a custard sauce is done, dip a silver spoon into the hot mixture. If the custard forms a straight line across the spoon, the mixture should be removed from the heat immediately. If the line is wavy, the custard has not thickened quite enough.

The whites from eight large, nine medium or 10 small eggs are needed to make a cup.

Ann Landers

Wife strips before uninvited guests

Dear Ann Landers: Every now and then, a woman writes to complain about her husband bringing home unexpected dinner guests. Usually it's a guy from out of town who just happened to be in his office.

My next-door neighbor read a book recently that gave the perfect solution. It suggested that women who want to pump excitement into a lackluster marriage should greet their husbands at the door wearing nothing but high heels and a string of beads. Or they might wrap themselves in plastic sheeting and tie a large red satin ribbon around "the package."

Any wife who pulls one of these stunts will never again have the problem of an unexpected dinner guest. Sign me – Positive

Dear Pos: A unique solution, to say the least. Did the book by any chance mention what to do with the children when Mummy does her burlesque numbers?

Dear Ann Landers: I have been putting off writing this letter since November, but after taking one downer, eight aspirins, two uppers and three shot glasses of Scotch whiskey, I decided to go the Ann Landers route.

Last year my best friend convinced me I should stop fooling around with drugs. I did. Four times. But now I'm at it again. For a while I was able to stay off the pills and stick strictly to booze mixed with orange juice. It worked for a while, then I showed up drunk in school one Monday morning, was expelled, and I learned my lesson.

I've tried to kill myself three times. Actually, I don't think I really wanted to die because I never took enough pills to kill me. I t hink maybe I just wanted attention.

There have been times when my friends convinced me that I don't need any of this junk. But after four or five days of being straight, I'm back – heavy as ever, or worse.

I don't know why I do it. One reason might be because I hate my parents. Another is that I hate myself. I hate my hair. It is falling out and the only answer is a hairpiece – which I despise -- or a transplant job, and that's too expensive. Can you help me? -- At 14 Messed Up

Dear 14: A boy of 14 with your history needs more than advice from Ann Landers. You are a very sick young man.

If losing your hair is part of your psychological problem, perhaps you should have a transplant. It might even be considered "therapy" and therefore covered by insurance.

I urge you to contact your local Mental Health Center. They are staffed with counselors waiting to help kids like you. But you must let them know you want help. Get moving, and good luck, Son.

Dear Ann: I'm engaged to a fine guy who has a hot temper. He has a habit of hitting or kicking things when he gets angry.

Last week when his baseball team lost, he socked the wall of the stadium and sprained his wrist. Today a motorist cut him off and he knocked his knee on the dashboard and it bled.

What's his problem? Any advice? – Love Him

Dear Love: That "fine guy" is grossly immature. He handles frustration like a ten-year-old. My advice to him is to get some counseling and learn how to handle anger. My advice to you is stay out of his way until he grows up.

"Sexual freedom" presents a difficult decision for teenagers and their parents. Ann Landers offers down-to-earth advice in her new booklet, "High School Sex And How To Deal With It – A Guide For Teens And Their Parents." For each booklet, send 50 cents in coin plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. B Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

An 8-ounce jar of maraschino cherries yields from 25 to 29 cherries and about 1-3rd cup juice.

Swimmers painted blue

PARIS (AP) — The mayor of a Corsican fishing village is fighting a rear guard action against the spread of nudism on French beaches this summer but indications are that the advocates of no swimwear, or "zerokinis," will triumph.

Pierre Morganti, mayor of Ogliastro, attracted nationwide attention with his squad of volunteers who chase after nudists on the village beach to daub them with blue paint. Morganti's action has aroused controversy between conservatives who applaud him and others who accuse him of violating civil liberties.

The government of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing has thus far avoided taking a stand on the issue. Chances are it will come down on the side of permissiveness, in line with a recent decision to abolish film and theater censorship and bar only minors under 18 from hard-core pornography.

Despite occasional outbursts of indignation among right-wing Gaullists and in traditionally conservative areas such as Corsica, municipalities all along France's Mediterranean, Atlantic and Channel coasts are one by one giving up the struggle against public nudism.

In a departure from the straight-laced attitudes of his two predecessors, Giscard d'Estaing has let it be known that he does not approve of gendarmes who hide behind sand dunes to ambush nude bathers and march them off to jail. But since local authorities have much freedom in establishing their own by-laws, total nudism is still banned in the biggest and most prominent beach resorts.

More and more of the smaller resorts have stopped trying to chase nudists off their beaches. "The nudists are gaining ground every year," said the mass-circulation France Soir. The paper estimated that 300,000 persons, half of them foreigners, were practicing total nudity on French beaches this summer.

Not so the white sandy beach of Ogliastro and similar bastions of anti-nudism. Mayor Morganti declared nudity an outrage to respectable visitors, and won unanimous approval from the municipal council for his paint-brush-wielding vigilantes.

Dozens have been caught and painted blue this season.

President's son bags wild boars

BONN, West Germany (AP) — President Ford's 23-year-old son Jack bagged four wild boar here during a predawn hunt at a game preserve.

Jack, who is accompanying his father and mother on their 10-day European trip, took part in a hunt at the game preserve owned by Joerg Baron von Holzschuher, owner of the Gymnich Castle where the Fords stayed during their West German visit.

First plane ride no pleasure trip

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Twelve-year-old David Anderson will take his first airplane trip Saturday, but it won't be a pleasure trip.

David, a victim of aplastic anemia, will be flown to Seattle with his mother and a brother in search for a cure.

Providence Hospital in Seattle is one of the few in the country equipped to treat the rare bone marrow affliction, characterized by weakened defenses against infection and hemorrhage.

David, who lives at California, Mo., with his parents and three brothers, has been receiving treatment at the University of Missouri-Columbia Medical Center. Doctors there concluded that his only chance for a cure was a bone marrow transplant.

His three brothers were tested at the medical center, and doctors chose 16-year-old Chris as the bone marrow donor.

On the flight to Seattle with Chris and his mother, Mrs. Paul Anderson, David will be isolated from other passengers because of the danger of infection to him.

"In David's case, the bone marrow is empty," said Dr. Leonard White. "He is not producing white blood cells—platelets. The white cells are nature's defense against infection and the platelets are a factor in clotting. Therefore, infection or hemorrhage must be avoided."

White said there are great risks in the operation and the Anderson family is aware of them. He said about 60 per cent of such bone marrow transplants are successful.

The date of the transplant operation has not been set.

Haywood City receives grant

A preliminary engineering study and report for a complete water system improvement in Haywood City was one of two projects receiving $2,500 federal grants through Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation. Lynn F. Ingram, right, DAEOC board member from Sikeston, presented the two checks totaling $5,000 to Mayor Ed Andrews at Haywood City on July 18. Also present to receive the g rant award were Percy White and Henry Jefferson, members of the Haywood City Board of The second $2,500 grant will be used to finance a comprehensive plan to be conducted for Haywood City by the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission of Malden. The comprehensive plan will provide the village of Haywood City with a long-range program for orderly and efficient physical growth of the community.

Farm bureau criticizes longshoremen

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. July 24, 1975 . . . "What are longshoremen thinking when they refuse to load grain on ships destined for the Soviet Union," questioned Farm Bureau President C. R. Johnston. "It's obvious that the longshoremen leadership is totally unaware of what the facts are." Farm exports have played a major role in improving our balance of payments and for paying the skyrocketing costs of increased oil imports. Farm exports have brought a sharp reduction in government farm program costs for the taxpayer, from $4 billion in 1972 to an estimated $800 million this year, Johnston said.

Farm exports also mean more jobs; some 450,000 people were employed assembling, processing and distributing agricultural exports in the past years. Our farm economy depends heavily on exports said Johnston, and one out of every four harvested acres in Missouri and the export market. There is little worry at this stage that the interests of the American public aren't adequately protected from higher food costs due to the Russian grain sales.

From all indications, adequate supplies of all grain products will be harvbsted this year with enough reserve for carry over in 1976, Johnston said. The U.S. wheat crop is estimated at 2.2 billion bushels this year, a 22 per cent increase over last year's record crop. Our normal domestic need of 800 million bushels plus hte 154.1 million bushels sold to Russia does not even approach our 1975 production.

The West Coast longshoremen have endorsed the expanded exports and they encourate two-way trade between Russia, China and the United States. It looks like the International Longshoremen leadership have their head in the sand.

Two Sikeston women to attend conference

COLUMBIA — Ruth Sappenfield of 607 Holly Hill Drive, Sikeston, and Ruth Ann Roberts of Sikeston Route Three will be among about 400 educators attending the annual leadership conference of the Missouri State Teachers Association, scheduled Aug. 5-9 at the MSTA Bunker Hill Ranch Resort near Mountain View.

Mrs. Sappenfield is president of the Sikeston Community Teachers Association, and Miss Roberts is representing the Southeast District Teachers Association.

Attending the conference will be presidents of local community teachers associations and district associations and MSTA department representatives, MSTA executive committee members, resource people and the professional staff of the Missouri State Teachers Association.

Keynote speakers at the general sessions will include Dr. Jack Kinder, MSTA executive secretary; Dr. Arthur Mallory, state commissioner of education; and Warren M. Black, executive secretary of the Public School Retirement System of Missouri.

The 2,080- acre Bunker Hill Rance Resort was given to the MSTA by the late E. T. Behrens. It serves as a recreational and eduvcational center for MSTA members and their families. The leadership conference is one of many such conferences held at the Bunker Hill ranch.

Sea lampreys, abhorrent to most people, were considered delicacies for centuries. The parasitic fish was a favorite dish of Roman Emperor Vitellius. A medieval French recipe called for stewed lampreys marinated in wine and England's King Henry I reputedly died from eating too much lamprey pie.

World news

HONOLULU (AP) — The three Apollo astronauts, their lungs still congested from inhaling rocket fuel fumes, face a 10-day period of seclusion here because they are vulnerable to infections. Doctors said Sunday they plan to release Thomas Stafford, Donald Slayton and Vance Brand from Tripler Army Hospital on Tuesday, then place them in "semi-isolation." Their wives were to fly here from the Houston area after it was decided exactly where the astronauts would be kept. The isolation period — which had not been mentioned by the doctors until Sunday — is intended to keep the astronauts away from other people, who might expose them to germs that would not harm a healthy person. Dr. Peter Bartelloni, chief of medicine at the hospital, said the toxic gas the crewmen breathed last Thursday has disabled lung cells that normally fight infections. They still cough when asked to breathe deeply, he said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans fed up with rising taxes have rejected proposed school budgets at a record rate this year, defeating spending plans requiring increased levies on property and other items. An Associated Press spot check showed the mood of discontent seemed strongest on the East and West Coasts, although there were signs of rebellion elsewhere. The biggest setbacks came in suburban areas where property taxes already are high. Some of the proposed tax increases ranged up to 2, per cent, with local authorities claiming they needed the money because state aid to education is not keeping pace with inflation. Local taxes on real estate and personal property provide the largest chunk of school funding in many areas and the voter rejections of levy increases have forced authorities to reshuffle budgets and cut spending to keep within existing revenues.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A jury begins deliberations today on whether former Sen. Edward J. Gurney took part in a corrupt scheme to raise money by selling his influence to Florida contractors with federal housing projects pending. Closing arguments concluded Saturday in the 23-week-old bribery-conspiracy trial of the Florida Republican and three others. U.S. District Judge Ben Krentzman told jurors he would instruct them on the law and send them out to deliberate today. Gurney, 61, ex-aide Joseph Bastien, 33, plus Federal Housing Administration officials Ralph Koontz, 51, and K. Wayne Swiger, 61, are charged with conspiracy to raise an illegal $233,000 campaign fund for Gurney by peddling his influence with the FHA.

Dunklin Co. tax study begins

KENNETT — A field representative from the office of State Auditor George W. Lehr arrived in Dunklin County last week to begin collecting information on property assessments.

The information gathered by Ed Brandel will be used to complete Lehr's statewide study of assessments and property tax. The study began March 17, with 79 counties completed so far.

Brandel is one of 12 field representatives working on the project. His work in the county will include a comprehensive interview with County Clerk Billy Horner, as well as gathering information on recent property sales. By September, representatives of Lehr's office will have visited every county in Missouri. Lehr will use the data to make recommentations to the Legislature to improve the property tax system.

The data collected by the field representtatives will go into a "sales-ratio" study of assessments. Among other things, this study will indicate whether property is assessed at the same rate across Missouri, as required by law. While the study will include a report on assessments in each county, its purpose is primarily to look at the overall assessment picture, rather than to evaluate the work of individual assessors.

The field representatives' first task in each county is to identify properties which have been sold. To do this, the representatives will rely on government record, as well as on interviews with bankers, real estate brokers, buyers and sellers, property appraisers and other persons. After identifying sales, the representatives will record such data as sale prices, assessed values, property usage, location and conditions of sale. Using this data, members of the auditor's staff in Jefferson City will be able to prepare their report. Specific information gathered in each county will be kept confidential.

Lehr hopes to finish the study and report to the Legislature and the public no later than December.

Probe of possible irregularities in municipalities insurance practices to begin by attorney general's office

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's attorney general will launch a six-week probe into possible irregularities in the ways some municipalities obtain property and liability insurance.

Atty. Gen. John Danforth said today he has sent a letter tocials in every municipality with a population of more than 500, asking them to provide certain information concerning how they obtain insurance coverage.

"It has come to the attention of this office that some municipalities have followed and are following practices of adopting criteria which... may be anti-competitive" in obtaining insurance coverage, he said in the letter.

Danforth said there have been indications that contracts have been awarded without competitive bids or to local agents exclusively or on a fee-splitting basis. Such practices, he indicated, may violate the state antitrust law.

"We have reason to believe that such questionable practices among municipalities may be widespread and closely parallel similar practiceswhich had been prevalent in Missouri school districts several years ago," Danforth said.

He noted that an inquiry into the situation within school districts brought an end to those practices in 1973, adding that open and competitive bidding could save municipalities 20 to 30 per cent in insurance premium costs.

Danforth said he felt there would be no need to begin grand jury investigations into such allegations if the municipalities provide the answers to his questions within the 30-day time limit.

"During this time of unemployment and skyrocketing inflation, I cannot understand why municipal governments would want to squander taxpayers money by engaging in anticompetitive practices," he said, "and I am confident we can get their full cooperation in stopping the practice."

Sikeston's Little League baseball season is over for all but about 60 athletes who will represent the city in tournament action here at home and on the road through August.

The city league tournaments were completed Friday night and only the Sikeston Standard lived up to its number one seed, claiming the Musial League title by edging the Bank of Sikeston 9-8. Bridger upset Nunnelee 5-4 for the American championship and Kiwanis defeated Pizza Inn 4-2 for the National League crown.

Hitters ruled thefinal night of league action as 112 hits were recorded in the final six games. Warfield connected for the only homerun, hitting that in the Jaycees 14-4 consolation win over A&B Leasing.

Only one field will be occupied by Little Leaguers at the city sports complex tonight as the 9-10 year old invitational gets underway. The Sikeston all-stars battle Portageville in the opener at 6:30 and Dexter meets New Madrid in the nightcap at 8 p.m.

Gibson wins 3rd

..ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bob Gibson may be through, but don't tell it to the Philadelphia Phillies.

The surging Phils, whose bats had been booming, were brought to a grinding halt Sunday by the 39-year-old star of yesteryear in broiling Busch Stadium heat.

"I thought he threw the ball pretty good," Phils center fielder Garry Maddox acknowledged grudgingly following four scoreless innings by Gibson in relief to highlight the 9-6 Cards win.

"He had a good slider, his fast ball was pretty good and he jammed a lot of people with it," added Maddox, who managed one of three singles off the aging Cardinal vet.

Starters John Denny of St. Louis and Jim Lonborg of the Phils wilted early in the hot sun or Gibson might have languished on the sidelines a 19th straight day since pulled from the Cards' starting rotation July 9.

But Denny wavered after his teammates built a 6-4 lead and departed following Bob Boone's single and Tony Taylor's double to open the Philadelphia fourth.

In strode Gibson for his second appearance out of the bullpen since 1965 in time to yield a run-scoring grounder by Dave Cash and Mike Schmidt's sacrifice fly.

Afterward, while bettering Tom Hilgendorf's relief for the Phils, the one-time fireballer permitted only Maddox' infield hit in the fifth and worked safely past singles by Dick Allen and Jay Johnstone in the seventh.

"There's nothing wrong with his arm. He can throw," declared Cards Manager Red Schoendienst, who lifted Gibson for a pinch-hitter after Ted Simmons' 13th homer snapped a 6-6 tie against Hilgendorf, 2-1, in the St. Louis seventh.

"It's just his knees that are bothering him," Schoendienst noted. "I was waiting for an opportunity to use him. We've got six starting pitchers, and they're all tired.

"I told him the other day we might need him because we've got doubleheaders coming up," Schoendienst added. "I told him I didn't know when but I'd let him know."

Gibson, after boosting his record to 3-8 with his first win in a month, related he'd had pregame words with both Schoendienst and General Manager Bing Devine.

"They said their plans were for me to stay here and play ball until the end of the season," he recalled.

"I was going crazy," Gibson admitted. "My spirits were really down. I can't just sit. Even if I knew I wasn't going to pitch any more the rest of the season I don't think I could do it."

Gibson's toil, punctuated by four strikeouts and a walk, impressed but apparently did not alter the judgment of Schoendienst, who will keep the major leagues' winningest active pitcher in reserve.

Asked if Gibson in the foreseeable future would be given a start, the Cards manager replied softly, "I don't see how or when."

Red Sox confident

Break up the Red Sox!!!!.

The boys from Boston are running away with the American League East and they don't expect to be caught from behind.

"I don't think we can blow it," said Manager Darrell Johnson. "These boys just love to play baseball and they play the hell out of it."

"Lose? No chance," said rookie outfielder Fred Lynn. "Well...there's always a possibility but the chances are really slim."

"If we stay healthy, no one is going to catch us," added pitcher Bill Lee. "We have the best ballclub."

The reason for all the optimism was a 1-0, 6-0 sweep of the New York Yankees Sunday, a twin-killing that lifted the Red Sox games ahead of second-place Baltimore in the East Division. Lee and Roger Moret pitched six-hitters as Boston won for the 17th time in the last 20 games.

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland swept a doubleheader from Chicago 10-1, 71, Baltimore took two games from Milwaukee 7-4 and 11-6 in 10 innings, California coasted by Minnesota 6-1, Kansas City shaded Texas 2-1 and Detroit split with Cleveland, winning 87 and losing 7-2.

Lee, 13-6, outdueled Catfish Hunter, 13-10, in the first game. Lynn reached first on an error by shortstop Jim Mason in the ninth inning, stole second and scored on Rick Miller's single for the game's only run.

Boston had an easier time of it in the nightcap as Jim Rice rapped four hits and drove in two runs, and Carl Yastrzemski hit his 12th home run of the year.

A's 10-7, White Sox 1-1

Vida Blue, 14-8, and Stan Bahnsen, 7-8, pitched eight-hitters and Reggie Jackson and Joe Rudi homered in each game as Oakland upped its lead in the AL West to 9½ games.

Orioles 7-11, Brewers 4-6

Baltimore rallied for six runs in the ninth to tie the second game and five more in the 10th to win it. Doug DeCinces' two-run triple and Al Bumbry's two-run homer keyed the rally in the ninth while Tommie Davis hit a grand slam homer in the 10th.

Angels 7, Twins 6

Dick Lange, 4-3, posted his first complete game victory of the season and had a shutout until Tony Olvia homered in the ninth.

Royals 2, Rangers 1

Steve Busby, 13-8, bested Gaylord Perry, 9-15, as Kansas City won its fifth straight game, four of them under new manager Whitey Herzog.

Tigers 8-2, Indians 7-8

Detroit rallied from a 7-2 deficit to take the opener on Aurelio Rodriguez' tie-breaking triple in the eighth inning.

Cleveland came back in the nightcap behind Fritz Peterson, 5-7, who won for the first time in two months.

CHICAGO (AP) — The New York Mets reinstated relief pitcher Bob Apodaca, who had suffered a [illegible] nose last month, fro[illegible] isabled list Sunday.

He replaced out[illegible]elder Cleon Jones on the roster. Jones was his given his outright release Saturday following a dispute with the club.

PRAGUE (AP) — France won its doubles match with Czechoslovakia Sunday to reduce the Czechs' lead to 2-1 in the Davis Cup European Zone B tennis competition.

Patrick Proisy and Patrice Dominguez defeated Jan Kodes and Jiri Hrebec 6-3, 3-6, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3. The remaining two singles matches in the best-of-five series are scheduled for Monday.

Sikeston's Little League football signup Saturday was 'very successful,' according to a league director, but many of last seasons players failed to signup as they are required to in order to be assigned to a team.

"It sems that many of last years players took little note to last week's newspaper story that stated last years players must also register," a league official noted.

In order to give those youngsters who wish to play this fall a chance to do so, league officials have scheduled additional registration for Saturday at the Sikeston High School Field House from 9 to 12.

"We also had a number of youngsters who thought that they signed up last spring in school when a questionaire was sent around wanting to know the number of boys interested in the sport, but these also must register, the league official noted.

Anyone wanting to pre-register should contact C.L. Blanton, III or Mike Taylor.

Smith runs fast

CHARLETON, Ill. (AP) — Ferocious Jackie Smith of the St. Louis Cardinals isn't getting any younger but he may be—of all things—getting faster.

The 6-foot-4 Smith, a tight end ready to start his 13th National Football League season, reported with a horde of veterans to the Cards' camp Sunday and promptly reeled off a 4.6 in the 40-yard dash.

Only wide receiver Mel Gray, renowned for his speed, was faster with a 4.5 recorded before the appreciative eyes of Coach Don Coryell and his staff.

"I can remember only one other time I ran that fast," the 35-year-old Smith, a product of Northwest Louisiana, later drawled, "and that was 10 years ago when I weighed 190. Now I weigh 240."

Two-a-day Cardinal drills were scheduled to resume for the full squad today, with only linebacker Pete Barnes missing because of a late start from his San Diego home.

The Cardinals said veteran center Ken Iman was released because of failing to pass his physical exam before veteran players reported over the weekend.

In St. Louis the 36-year-old Iman, whom the Cards obtained in April from the Los Angeles Rams in exchange for a future draft choice, said he will probably retire.

Vanduser wins 31st

Vanduser's fast pitch softball team rolled over the 30 victory mark with four wins during the weekend.

Starting off the big weekend of wins was a 3-0 victory over league leading Oran. It was followed Saturday by a 4-2 win over the New Hamburg Falstaffs and a Sunday doubleheader sweep of Sikeston Ziegenhorn, 11-2 and 2-1.

Rick O'Donald claimed three of the four wins from the mound. Gary Owens, just returning from guard camp, won the fourth contest.

Leading hitters for Vanduser over the weekend was Basil Mays, David Pobst and Howard Abner. Vanduser has won 11 straight and is 31-10 on the season and goes to Cape Girardeau Wednesday night for a battle with the A's.

Pipeline

Bonnie Pruden Says: Find Time To Exercise

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Physical fitness is a family thing, according to Bonnie Prudden, who has spent 30 years working out flexible exercises to make it easy.

"Aging is not so much a matter of years but of lack of fitness," she said in an interview here. "As you get older, it's more difficult to keep fit but when you exercise every single day it helps keep you young."

In 1954, Mrs. Prudden reported to President Dwight D. Eisenhower that 54 per cent of young school children she tested had flunked a basic fitness test, more than half again as many as had failed the test in Europe.

"Today, 85 per cent of young children fail that same test," she added. "Despite increased interest in gymnastics and in games like tennis, it's still natural athletes who excell in school physical education. Needs of other children are for the most part ignored."

The fitness expert warned that too many parents say their children don't wish to exercise, and therefore should not. Children, she said, do not always know what they want. The basics of fitness should be taught so they can build on them later on.

Her short, blonde hair in a pixie cut, Mrs. Prudden's face and figure belie her 61 years and her pride in the achievements of her children and grandchildren. She lives in Stockbridge, Mass., where she heads the Bonnie Prudden Institute for Physical Fitness.

"I grew up in a time when children walked four to 10 miles each day, skated, skiied, climbed trees. Today, children have little opportunity for those things," she said.

The answer, Mrs. Prudden said, is an exercise program in which an entire family participates. Her new book, "How To Keep Your Family Fit and Healthy," studies ways fitness can be made easy.

"We lived with a family — all three generations — for a year working this program out, and we took more than 2,000 pictures from which we selected 500 for the book. Nothing in there is difficult," she added.

The result is a total fitness regime to help individuals keep their muscles flexible.

"People don't realize there's an exercise answer for everything, a way of handling most all problems. There are exercises to reduce tension, or to keep a driver from becoming stiff if he's behind the wheel for a long period."

People who say they have no time for exercise are wrong, Mrs. Prudden said. They have no time to stop exercising and keeping their muscles flexible and elastic.

"Whatever your lifestyle, you have only one body. It must be cared for," she added.

("How To Keep Your Family Fit and Healthy" is published by Readers Digest Press.)

Re-enlistment bonus bill vetoed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—The high cost forced Gov. Christopher S. Bond to veto a bill today that provided for re-enlistment bonuses for Missouri National Guardsmen.

The bill, which would have cost more than $600,000 a year, would have provided a bonus of $100 a year for each year a guardsmen re-enlisted up to a maximum bonus of $600.

Bond also vetoed a bill that would have created the Missouri Forest Research Council, contending that it violated the intent of state reorganization.

That measure would have set up a five-member independent board, appointed by the governor to promote development and research in Missouri forestry. State reorganization, approved by the voters in 1972 and implemented last July, abolished the independence of numerous boards and councils, placing them under the control of one of the state departments.

Marriage of Rolfe and Pocahontas.

Business With His Father-In-Law...

□ Her main fame in history came from the day she threw herself across the bared head of Captain John Smith and prevented her father, the mighty Indian ruler, Powhatan, from bashing his brains out.

But Pocahontas was to have a larger, if less publicized, role in the development of America. After Smith returned to England, the Indian maid married a young settler named John Rolfe.

Powhatan took his son-in-law into the business and had him taught the Indian secrets of growing tobacco. Rolfe improved the tobacco strain by importing milder seeds from the West Indies. Suddenly, Virginia tobacco was the rage of the European markets.

The rush to grow the golden leaf brought settlers by the thousands, pushed back the wilderness and hastened the development of Virginia and the American Colonies.

Pocahontas and Powhatan? They were sculpted in wood and placed in front of thousands of tobacco shops.

Suspect released on bond

BLOOMFIELD — A Puxico man has been released on bond after being charged with leaving the scene of a car-bicycle accident Friday night in which a 10-year-old Puxico boy was seriously injured, the Stoddard County Sheriff's Department said today.

Charged was Arthur Allison, 33, of Decatur, Ill. He was arrested about midnight Friday by the highway patrol and sheriff's officers.

The highway patrol said the accident occurred about 7:30 p.m. on Highway 51 in Puxico when a car driven by Allison apparently weaved across the center line and struck a bicycle driven by John Roach Jr., 10, of Puxico.

The boy was taken Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff, then transferred to Missouri Delta Community Hospital at Sikeston and later to Dexter Memorial Hospital.

Fire destroys vacant home

Fire destroyed a vacant home on Brown Spur road, located one mile north of Highway 114, about 2:30 a.m. Saturday. The three-bedroom stucco home was owned by L. A. Garner. The cause of the fire is unknown. Firemen were called too late to save the house, which had nearly burned to the ground by the time firemen arrived.

Close energy votes expected in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some very close votes are being predicted in Congress this week as the legislators confront the energy problem with oil price controls scheduled to expire Aug. 31.

The majority leaders of both houses indicated they expect some movement in Congress to cope with the scheduled expiration, which would lead to a relatively fast increase in the price of gasoline and other petroleum products.

Speaker Carl Albert told reporters today the prospects for work on energy legislation this week are "lots of headaches and effort and hopefully some results."

The House will consider a resolution to disapprove President Ford's proffered compromise and also may try to write some form of compromise on oil prices and decontrol into the energy bill it is considering.

Speaker Albert said additional compromise efforts are possible.

The House also will vote Tuesday on President Ford's veto of a $2 billion health program authorization bill.

The Senate voted 67 to 15 Saturday to override. For a bill to be enacted into law despite a presidential veto, each house must re-pass it by at least two-thirds majority.

Soon after Albert told newsmen of the plan for a veto vote, Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., appealed to the House to override.

"President Ford's vetoes now go across the board," O'Neill said. "He has said no to jobs, no to housing, no to energy, no to education and health. You name it, he's vetoed it ..."

O'Neill said Sunday on CBS' "Face the Nation" that he thinks Congress will reject Ford energy compromise proposal and adopt its own similar measures.

O'Neill said an amendment similar to what the President has suggested will be proposed this week and he expects it to win approval. And, he said he anticipates that with such an amendment, Ford will agree to a temporary extension of current controls.

It will be very close, whether the amendment is passed, O'Neill said.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said on NBC's "Meet the Press" that he thinks there is a "50-50 chance" that Congress will accept President Ford's compromise proposal to remove controls over 39 months.

Congress must consider Ford's plan this week. If Congress does nothing by Friday, the administration's program goes into effect automatically.

If nothing is done, "then it means controls will go off ... and prices for gasoline will skyrocket," Mansfield said.

"Th only alternativa wvuld be a three-to-six-months' extension of present controls" qhile anotheruplan can be worked out, he said.

Currently so-called old oil, that produced from wells in oper2tion before 1972, is frozen at $5.25 a barrel. It makes up about 60 per cent of the oil produced in the United States. New oil, not controlled, sells for more than $11 a barrel.

Ford has proposed ending these price controls to encourage more oil exploration and development, and the battle has been over this point. Ford's compromise proposal calls for easing the controls gradually over 39 months, with a top limit of $11.50 a barrel during that period. He also has proposed a windfall profits tax levied on the oil companies' added profits as a result of their higher prices and encouraging the companies to plow the money back into oil exploration.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader issued a statement Sunday opposing Ford's plan, saying it will only add money to the coffers of the oil companies. And Nader said members of Congress who have private interests in gas and oil should disqualify themselves from voting on this legislation.

In other Congressional action, as the legislators try to clear the decks for their August vacation beginning at the end of the week, the arms embargo against Turkey is expected to be a major item of discussion, although O'Neill said he doubts that it will come up again for House action this week.

Sen. Eagleton to speak at co-op meeting

The nominating committee has chosen Sam Jones of East Prairie, R. G. Stroud of Matthews, Albert S. Elfrank of Advance and A. A. Birk of Jackson for the positions, but additional nominations may be made at the meeting.

Entertainment will be provided by The Gospel Lads Quartet from Joplin.

Foam used in practice

It may look like someone's bubble bath overflowed the tub, but actually firemen from the Miner Fire Department are shown using their foam generator during a practice session at an old house at 318 Allen Blvd. Firemen from Sikeston, Miner, Morehouse and the Benton-Commerce- New Hamburg fire departments used the old house to sharpen their firefighting techniques. The property where the house stood will be used for a parking lot by the Heritage House.

From there, the schedule is: 11:30 a.m. -12:15 p.m.—the group will tour portions of the area, looking at cotton, corn, soybeans, rice and milo crops; 12:15-1 p.m.—luncheon at Radcliffe Plantation, eight miles north of Parma; 1-2 p.m.—tour of the Radcliffe Plantation; 2-3:30 p.m.—tour of the Catron, Kewanee, Matthews areas to look at diversified farming operations.

Pedestrian injured

A New Madrid woman was slightly injured when she was struck by an automobile Saturday night while crossing Malone Avenue at the New Madrid Street intersection.

Lela Hayes, 64, of 1405 Davis St., New Madrid was treated for scratches and bruises and released at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

She was struck at 7:25 p.m by a car driven by Richard Raymond Hillyard, 36, of 722 Kendall St.

Police said the accident occurred when Hillyard was turning west onto West Malone Avenue from South New Madrid Street, was blinded by the sun, and failed to see the woman as she walked across the street. She told police she was unable to get out of the way after she saw the approaching car.

No arrests were made, police said.

2 killed, 21 hurt in area

Two teen-agers were killed and 21 injured -- one critically -- in 12 area traffic accidents over the weekend, the highway patrol reported today. The two fatalities raised the death toll on Missouri roads this year to 55, compared to 62 at the same time in 1974.

A Campbell youth was killed in a single-vehicle accident at 6 a.m. Sunday on Route WW two miles north of Campbell.

The accident occurred when the southbound car he was driving ran off the west side of the road, hit an embankment and overturned.

The victim was Johnnie C. Hays II, 18. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff. His body was taken to Landess Funeral Home in Campbell.

The highway patrol said the accident was not discovered until 8:30 a.m., about two and a half hours later.

A Dent County youth was killed and two persons injured in a two-car accident at 6:30 p.m. Saturday on Highway 32 about 1.3 miles west of Bixby in Iron County.

The accident occurred when an eastbound car driven by Stephen E. Norris, 20, of Salem was traveling at a high rate of speed on the wrong side of the road. A westbound car driven by Jimmy Dean Wilkerson, 19, of St. Louis swerved in an attempt to miss the Norris car but was struck in the left front.

Killed was a passenger in the Norris car, George Edward McMullin, 16, of Boss. His body was taken to Spencer Funeral Home in Salem.

Wilkerson received critical injuries and Norris received

WHERE HAVE ALL THE LIBERALS GONE?

In recent years, the smallest whiff of American scandal has elicited tremendous denunciation by the country's liberal intellectuals. The agonizing years of Vietnam and Watergate, alleged excesses by the CIA, and our current economic problems all have given them a field day.

Today, however, the major scandals facing the world come not from the United States and its allies,but rather from leftist forces who have seized power or are in the process of doing so in various countries. An entire Cambodian population was herded, like cattle, into a desolate countryside, where many thousands perished. A leftist junta in Portgual wiped out civil liberties wholesale. Citizens of India, formerly the world's largest democracy, lost their freedoms practically overnight under the goading of Indira Gandhi by the Soviet Union.

The response to these excesses by America's liberals can best be described as a deafening silence. Where are our liberal intellectuals — those self-proclaimed purveyors of the public conscience — now, when we really need them? Where are the newspaper pundits and network commentators, and where are the full-page ads signed by all those professors?

Jeffrey Hart, who writes a syndicated column for King Features, recently noted the absence of liberal protest over the situation in Portgual and asked what would have happened if the suppression had been perpetrated instead by a right-wing military regime. "There would be editorials, conferences and demands for boycott," answers Hart. "The halls of Congress and the United Nations would resound with speeches. Amnesty International would issue indignant statements. Movies on the order of 'Z' would be produced, Heartrending accounts of torture would appear everywhere."

Regarding the barbarity of the Khmer Rouge communist regime in Cambodia, Hart adds: "Once again, where is the fabled 'international conscience?' Where have all the ad hoc committees gone? ... The truth is that (the liberals) seem to be capable of indignation only over outrages perpetrated by the right, and numb to outrages by the left. This bias is so pervasive that now it is taken for granted and has become invisible to those who participate in it."

We could not agree more with Professor Hart. The duplicity and double standard of these liberal influence-peddlers has been convincingly unmasked by their silence. It's a lesson we can't afford to forget the next time their poisonous pens are again unleashed on America.

PHILATELIC PHIRST

The Apollo-Soyuz mission, the first joint venture by the United States and the Soviet Union in the history of space exploration, will appropriately be commemorated by a first in philatelic history.

The U. S. Postal Service and the USSR Ministry of Posts and Telecommunications issued a twin pair of postage stamps, one of U.S. design and one of Soviet design, honoring the Apollo-Soyuz teams on July 15, the day of the launchings.

The same two designs will be used by both nations on stamps that will be identical in both countries, except for language and denomination — 10 cents for the U.S. stamp and 12 kopecks for the Soviet.

THE BASIC FREEDOM: A FREE PRESS

The use of subpoena processes and contempt citations to force journalists to divulge confidential information they have obtained in the course of gathering the news has increased markedly in recent years.

Between January and April of this year alone, courts around the country issued no less than 56 subpoenas against newspeople. Reporters have been jailed. Just as serious, "gag orders" to prevent the reporting of court proceedinggs—even those open to the public—have risen from only two in 1966 to at least 28 in 1974.

Legal costs and trial expenses are such that the mere threat of court action can act as a restraint on the practical freedom of the press, says the Reporters committee on Freedom of the Press, an organization of working journalists in print and broadcasting founded in 1970.

While many public-spirited attorneys have donated their services to defend newspeople, the rising number of cases has made a fund campaign necessary.

Thus the committee has launched a two-year drive to set up a "First Amendment Research and Defense Fund" to help pay the costs of legal research and defense services for the working press of all media.

In accepting the chairmanship of the campaign, Arthur R. Taylor, president of CBS, Inc., said:

"On every side the press is faced with increasing litigation and other censorship efforts in the courts, legislatures and executive agencies on the local, state and federal levels. We believe the time has come for the news media to establish a centralized research, information and legal defense clearing house with sufficient manpower and financial resources to inform the public of the increasing legal threats to First Amendment freedoms and to aid reporters, ediitors and news organizations who want to fight back in the courts."

The alarmingly successful effort by some government officials to misuse the power of the subpoena and the court order to silence the flow of information through the press to the public has resulted in recent years in "the cumulative erosion of press freedom as never before witnessed under our Constitution," he claims.

The present threat, he says, is a "quieter, subtler and certainly clumsy but well-publicized attacks on the press by high government officials in the recent past.

Ever since the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1972, that the First Amendment does not grant newsmen the general right to withhold information from grand juries, even if obtained during legitimate newsgathering activities. Sometimes the information bears on legitimate public concerns, sometimes it doesn't

State "shield" laws designed to protect journalists from such efforts have been interpreted so narrowly as to be virtually useless against forced disclosure. The trend already has had a demonstrably chilling effect on the flow of information to the public, he says.

Like most other things, this is not a clear-cut issue. First Amendment rights can and do conflict at times with other rights. And many Americans may feel that this new wave of attacks on the press is a problem affecting journalists alone, that it does not concern the ordinary citizen.

As individuals, of course, reporters have no more rights than anybody else. But as members of the institution of the press, they are serving the interests of society by fulfilling its constitutionally assigned role as the unofficial fourth branch of government.

It is too often forgotten, says Taylor, that freedom of the press is basic to the rights of all citizens, that without the lines of communication provided by the press to the body politic, the other basic rights of individuals become lifeless extremities.

PROFITS TURNABOUT IS NAME OF OIL GAME

Just 18 months after the oil-producing countries initiated their embargo, the widely heralded push for national energy self-sufficiency seems to have run out of steam.

Except for a new tax law affecting the major American oil companies, Congress has been unable to come up with a longrange, comprehensive energy policy.

Some observers in fact warn that congress's "punitive" measures against the oil industry, such as ending the controversial depletion allowance, will actually work against the goal of increasing the nation's energy supply. Others doubt whether President Ford has any better an idea with his latest buck a barrel increase in the tariff on imported oil.

Even before the new legislation, a combination of circumstances was bringing an end to the embarrassment of riches that began to haunt the oil companies after the Arabs artificially boosted prices. Decreased consumption because of the recession and conservation, a mild winter, price controls and a current worldwide surplus in crude capacity have turned the industry's effort profit boom into a comparative bust.

Few perhaps will shed tears over this turnabout. Yet strangely, little complaint was ever heard about the record profits another basic industry—the steel industry—racked up in 1974 by virtue of a rapid series of price hikes that totalled some 40 per cent for the year.

Even while 1975 first-quarter earnings for all manufacturing industries fell an average of 18 per cent from the same quarter in 1974, the three largest steel producers, Bethlehem, Republic and U.S. Steel, posted profit gains of 86 per cent, 57 per cent and 54 per cent respectively. This in the depths of what was supposed to be the worst economic slump since the 1930s.

In contrast, first-quarter profits of the major oil companies were down an average of 30 per cent. Earnings declines ran as high as 66 per cent for Texaco, 59 per cent for Cities Service and 33 per cent for Gulf.

It has always been difficult to defend the oil industry. Such things as the recent revelation that the last-named company paid millions of dollars in bribes to the officials of certain foreign countries do little to enhance the industry's image.

One estimate, however, is that the oil industry will have to invest more than $300 billion by 1985 in order to discover, produce and deliver the ever-increasing quantities of petroleum products the nation will need in the coming decade. Thus the oilmen's come-uppance in the form of higher taxes and lower profits may not necessarily be gladsome reading for Americans in the not-so-long run.

DON'T BLAME THE FARMER

No one can deny that food prices have gone up. They have—by about 64 per cent between 1953 and 1973. But during the same period, wages increased more than 142 per cent.

Moreover, Americans are spending a smaller percentage of their incomes on food than they did a couple of decades ago. In 1953, food took about 22 per cent of the disposable income. In 1973, it was down to 16 per cent, and the Department of Commerce estimates it was 16.7 per cent in 1974, despite the fact that the consumer price index—the cost of everything—rose nearly 12 per cent.

This is less than in any other country. Worldwide, the percentage of income spent on food runs between 30 and 60 per cent.

According to a report by The Conference Board, New York based economic research organization, total consumer spending (after inflation is subtracted) rose $350 billion, or 75 per cent, in the United States between 1960 and 1973. And while 9 per cent of that increased spending went for food, this compares with 14.5 per cent more spent on luxuries and 15 per cent more spent on automobiles.

Nevertheless, everyone thinks food prices are too high and that somebody is getting rich because of it.

Well, it's not the farmer, according to one source. While farm income has gone up in recent years, it is still low, says F.L. Wooten, vice president of Kaiser Agricultural Ceemicals.

In 1971, median income for all U.S. families was $10,285, he says, but for farm families (and 98 per cent of all farms are familiay operations) it was $5,712. In 1973, farmers earned approximately $3,300 per person, but national per capita income was $5,000.

Then where is the food dollar going?

The farmer receives less than half the money spent for food, says Wooten. In 1973, he got 46 per cent of each food dollar; in 1974, 42 per cent. All indications are that it will be even less this year. The remainder goes for transportation, processing and retailing.

America's farmers remain the world's most productive, feeding more than a quarter of the earth's population. They have played a large part in improving the nation's balance of payments situation and are constantly working to achieve greater efficiency.

For example, in 1960 there were 7.9 million farm workers, each supplying enough food for 25 other persons. In 1974, there were only 4.3 million farm workers, but each provided enough food for himself and 50 additional people.

None of these statistics may do much to ease the pain one experiences while strolling down the supermarket aisle, but at least they may help to put things in better perspective.

NEED TO KNOW MORE

Probably the oil industry is the least known and most talked about of any industry in the country. Knowledge of the industry is limited to the color of the gas pump at a corner service station–that plus a growing awareness of a threatened shortage of oil and gasoline. However, aside from the fuel it provides, the oil industry is a mighty economic asset in terms of jobs, taxes and community prosperity.

The 1973 edition of "The Oil Producing Industry In Your State" reveals that 32 out of the 50 states produce oil and-or natural gas. Some figures give a measure of the value of this activity to these states and to the nation. In 1972, the combined value of oil and natural gas totaled $17.3 billion. Oil and natural gas contributed 54 percent of the total value of all U.S. mineral production. The oil and gas industry in 1972 provided direct employment for 266,744 persons. This, added to the employment in other segments of the petroleum industry, accounts for 1.2 million jobs or 1.4 percent of total U.S. employment. Since the first American oil well was drilled in 1859 in Pennsylvania, the U.S. petroleum industry through 1972 has drilled 2,249,603 wells which have produced 115.4 billion barrels of liquid petroleum and 437 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. In addition to the billions of barrels of oil which the industry has produced to date, potential U.S. petroleum reserves awaiting discovery have been estimated by the U.S. Geological Survey to be more than adequate to satisfy the nation's increasing petroleum energy requirements for the foreseeable future.

These are facts about the U.S. oil and natural gas industries upon which the life of the nation depends and about which many people know very little. This is one reason for failure to recognize the necessity of releasing the brakes of excessive environmentalism and other restrictions that have curbed U.S. oil exploration and production.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS
Nets Block Patriotic Ford Talk

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The major television networks, including the Public Broadcasting Service, have refused to broadcast a conversation with President Ford about America.

Philadelphia businessman Edward J. Piszek, who thought the American people should hear what the President had to say, offered to pay the networks commercial rates to present his views during prime time. Still, the networks rejected the program.

The story of their astonishing arrogance is worth telling, as evidence of the tight control a few network czars exercise over the TV channels. Here are the details:

It has been my lot to expose the blemishes on the American system, But the sight of the morning sun glinting off the Capitol dome still gives me a thrill. I arranged, therefore, to do a Bicentennial television show with President Ford.

He was to give his reflections on the current condition of America, the health or illness of our basic institutions the general outlook for the American experiment after 200 years.

The President talked, quite upliftingly I thought, about the enduring values and strengths as he has experienced them over a lifetime of public service.

He spoke about the changes he would like to see. "There has been a tendency of late," he complained, "to herd people together . . . The government is almost overpowering the individual, whether he is a production worker or whether he is a businessman or whether he is a farmer."

Oh, I asked some impertinent question: How did he as a politician defend his profession? Has the presidency become too remote from the people?

After reminding him how the British ambassador had been startled to discover Abraham Lincoln shining his own shoes in the White Houe, I even asked: "Do you shine your own shoes?"

Ford shot right back: "I shined my own shoes for 61 years and I can do it. And I made my own breakfast for most of my lifetime."

The program was non-political, noncontroversial. But all in all, it provided a rather intimate glimpse of the President's faith in the country. I thought it was worthwhile television.

The networks, however, disagreed. This upset Edward Piszek who had offered to help underwrite the production costs. The son of Polish immigrants, he started out with $450 in 1946 and founded Mrs. Paul's Kitchens, Inc. Its sales now exceed $65 million.

For Piszek, the American dream had come true and he was indignant over the attitude of the networks toward a patriotic program. So he tried to buy commercial prime time to present the President. The networks wouldn't sell him the time.

Each network explained, in effect, that it doesn't carry interviews with the President unless he is buoyed up by a supporting cast of network personalities. In other words, it is not so much the President's answers that matter; it's who asks the questions.

Even more incredibly, public television turned down the show. The taxpayers are doling out $46.4 million to public television stations this fiscal year, plus another $9 million for facilities, plus additional funds for specific television shows. Yet the Public Broadcasting Service refused to present, at no cost to the taxpayers, the President talking about the greatness of America.

The explanation, believe it or not, was that the program contained no "hard news," which would justify its inclusion in a line-up that regularly features book reviews and programs about yoga, cooking and chess plays.

The purpose of my conversation with the President was not to make news. Still, there was a time when the opinions of the President of the United States were thought to be news.No holy writ,not even good sense all the time, but always news.

Editors felt that since he was the nation's leader – and since his personality might have something to do with whether there would be peace or war, justice or injustice, order or chaos – even his foggiest notions along with his great concepts were news.

Besides, it was thought that a lot of people were interested in the President and in what he had to say -- not only on matters of state but about sports, bringing up dogs, or even the quality of his daughter's singing voice. And if a President deigned to give an exclusive broadcast interview, well, that was in itself a news event.

That standard apparently expired, at least among the news czars of the television networks. In its place is a new rule -- presidential programs are worthy of a public airing only if (a) they deal with "hard news," and (b) they are conducted by members of a network's news staff.

I have been saying for some time that the government doesn't own the news. Network executives don't own it either and their treatment of President Ford's patriotic comments can only diminish the standing of the free press in America.

Inside Labor

Diamond Jim Type:
From Miami to Manhattan--Anti-Crime Strike Forces Smashing Big Money Rackets

MIAMI, Fla.--You never really leave home when you shuttle between New York's anti-organized crime strike force and the task force operating in this resort-edged town. Only here it's with palm trees.

Of course up in Manhattan it's bigger. Bill Aronwald's New York coordinated crime-smashing team has brought in some 80 heavy convictions since June 1, 1974. The two undercover businesses set up by his task group have gotten 13 grand jury indictments on "the coat side" of the garment area. You know, extortion, hijacking, fencing, shakedowns, perjury, loan-sharking. The whole thing.
And on "the trucking side," there are four indictments and lots more nation-shaking exposures coming.

But since I'm a new boy in town down here, I've just gotten around to the 105-count grand jury indictment the other day of a most imaginative labor official who's charged with such archaic embezzling schemes you couldn't be more surprised if you saw the original Diamond Jim Brady strolling down Biscayne Boulevard.

In fact, this is a self-made Diamond Jim. His name is Bernard Rubin. He's the type, which if the charges are true, drags the labor movement back to the tenderloin days of the '20s.

Rubin runs a network of laborer's unions. He lives expansively and expensively. He draws well in the six figures. According to the massive indictment, the biggest and heaviest I've ever encountered, he has rolled it up by "double, triple, quadruple, quintuple etc. billing his unions for the same expenses" according to a source close to the case.

In all he is charged with embezzling $385,000 in union funds.

Rubin drives a Mercedes, owns real estate and a piece of an apartment house. But apparently none have been, according to the anti-crime task force, as lucrative as his Southeast Florida Laborer's District Council, the Concrete Products and Material Yard Workers local 666, and the Laborers Union Local 478. Since he is considered one of the most powerful men in his field here, he also worked for the International.

Frequently, it is charged, he billed all or two or three of his outfits for the same trips. And he does love to travel. Like to Paris, London, San Juan, Hawaii, the Bahamas, New orleans, Boston, New York. And live well, like in Manhattan's posh Park Avenue Regency Hotel. Or the Honolulu Kahala Hilton. That last one was in December 1970.

And, says the indictment, Rubin "caused" the following to pay for his expenses at the December 1970 Educational Conference of the National Foundation of Health, Welfare and Pension Plans, Inc.:

Laborer's Local 666; Laborer's Dade County Trust Fund; Laborer's Palm Beach Trust Fund; and Laborer's Local Union 293 trust fund.

They each paid him close to $2,000 apiece for the same trip, according to the grand jury.

Rubin is a sports fan as well as a devotee of educational seminars. In January 1972, he went to the world championship heavyweight fight in New Orleans. This was the Joe Frazier-Terry Daniels bout. Rubin wasn't even in the prelims. But he did well. Both Local 478 and 666 paid him about $600 each for the taxis, tips, entertainment, meals and four tickets.

And then there was Paris in 1973. You might go to Paris for the Louvre, the ghost of Les Halles or the Eiffel Tower. But like I told you Rubin loves educational conferences. This erudite gathering was the annual Educational Conference run by the Eastern Conference of Health and Welfare Pension Plans. What could be more logical than Paris, France, for a pension parley?

Rubin billed Local 666, Laborer's Dade County Trust Fund and the District Council for over $2,300 apiece. And to even matters he invoiced Local 478 for $53.74.

The indictment, more than a year in the making, describes Rubin's actions as a "pattern of racketeering activities." Very fancy pattern.

There were 88 embezzlement counts. Also failure to retain some records. Also the IRS is in it.

It's ludicrous. And tragic. What makes a Rubin tick? Why the betrayal of his people's trust? Why become the anchor of efforts of national leaders to drag some unions into the 20th century? How many suits can a man wear, how many cars can he drive, how many steaks can he eat–at the same time?

Mexican group on soy study tour

CARUTHERSVILLE — A Mexican government program to provide soy protein foods for low-income persons will move a step nearer to realization as a result of a visit to the United States this week by a team of Mexican nutritionists and food technicians.

Their study trip, arranged by the American Soybean Association (ASA) and the U.S. Department of Agriculture Foreign Agricultural Service, will provide team members with a broad knowledge of the value of soy protein products, according to Jack Tipton of Caruthersville, president of the Missouri Soybean Association.

This knowledge will hopefully help team members implement Mexico's National Food Program, which would provide low-cost nutritious foods based on soy protein on low-income groups, says Tipton.

The National Food Program was formed in 1971 but still is n ot functioning, due to a lack of knowledge of the value of soy protein in dietary planning, he adds.

Team members include representatives from the government public health department, the government department of industry and commerce and the Association of Food Technicians of Mexico.

They will discuss soy protein nutrition and utilization in human foods with soy food experts at Ralston Purina Co. in St. Louis.

In Kansas City, team members will visit C. J. Patterson Co. to discuss use of soy flours in bakery products and possibilities for their use in traditional Mexican foods such as tortillas.

They will also visit Wenger International, a manufacturer of soy protein extrusion equipment in Kansas City, to see the technology which has been developed for soy foods production in this country.

Mexico is a growing market for U.S. soybeans, says Tipton, noting that consumption of soy products has increased fivefold since ASA began market development work there in 1971.

ASA expects the increasing use of soy protein for human consumption in Mexico to continue expanding the market for U.S. soybens soybeans inthat country, Tipton adds.

Three phases for nationwide program announced by Corps

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Rules published Friday in the Federal Register implement a nationwide program by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers to protect the quality of the waters of th United States against environmentally harmful discharges of dredged or fill materials.

While the regulation clarifies and expands for pollution control the long-established Corps jurisdiction, making it parallel to the coverae of EPA, many less harmful activities are excluded to produce a workable program.

The final regulation, which was developed in close cooperation with the Environmental Protection Agency, was published in compliance with an order of he U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia issued on March 27, 1975.

Some 4,500 comments received on the draft regulation published My 6 have been considered in the preparation of the interim final rules.

Assistant secretary of the Army, Victor V. Veysey, announced that the Corps will gradually expand its jurisdiction in a three-phase program over the next two years.

Phase I, effective with Friday's notice in the Federal Register, extends the existing permit procedures now applicable to traditional navigable waters of the United States to also include adjacent wetlands. These wetlands have been identiried as an endangered and valuable resource.

Phase II, effective July 1, 1976, will initiate regulation of discharges of dredged or fill material into primary tributaries of navigable waters of the United States, natural lakes greater than five acres in surface area and their adjacent wetlands.

Phase III, after July 1, 1977, will extend the Corps of Engineers' authority as directed by Congress to regulate discharges of dredge or fill material into other waters generally up to the headwaters, where streams flow les than five cubic feet per second.

Discharges of dredged material and the placement of fill material that are necessary for the construction of any structures in waters of the United States are covered by the progrtam. However, Veysey listed a number of examples of activities which are not included in the program.

No permits will be required for operations other than dredge or fill; for work outside of navigable waters as defined; for normal farming, ranching and forestry operations, such as plowing, seeding, cultivating, and harvesting; for disposal ofdredged or fill material in most manmade canals, such as drainage and irrigation ditches; for dredged or fill for conservation or erosion control in areas outside navigable waters; and maintenance and emergency repairs of dikes, dams, levees, rip-rap, breakwaters and causeways.

The regulation also includes a "grandfather clause" which "permits" dredge or fill projects that were completed by Friday. Additionally, permits will not be required for minor work started prior to publication of Friday's notice and scheduled to be completed by next January

Veysey explained that, while this regulation becomes effective upon its publication, an additional comment period of 90 days and a series of public hearings will be offered throughout the nation so that the public can comemnt further on any of its provisions. These comments will be reviewed and the regulation modified as necessary.

Veysey concluded, "We recognize that this program directed by Congress will result in the federal regulation of many dredged or fill discharge activities which have never before been subject to corps permits or to this degree of beneficial water quality protection. We, therefore, strongly urge the public to review and comment further on this interim final regulation in order that it can be modified, where necessary and legally permissible, to fully address your concerns, desires, goals and objectives."

Pope calls for prayer for peace

CASTLE GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Pope Paul VI says the European Security Conference convening Tuesday in Helsinki, Finland, is a "solemn affirmation" of peace.

In an address to 3,000 people gathered here Sunday at the papal summer retreat, the pontiff called on all men to welcome the conference and asked Christians to pray for it.

What's the law?

The case of the adulterous mother

The attractive Mrs. Jones, as a general proposition, never accepted a proposition except, possibly, "here" and "there." And, when her suspicious husband caught her at it both "here" and "there," and everywhere else, he charged her with adultery, sued for a divorce and, despite the fact that she had been a good and loving mother, demanded custody of their children.

"If he's going to be so narrow-minded," responded Mrs. Jones in court, "he can have his old divorce. But, as to the children, they're mine and they belong with their mother."

"Not when their mother has led the sexy kind of life my wife has led," answered the indignant Mr. Jones. "The fact is, she's had more strange bedfellows than a politician. And, while it might be O.K.for a politician, it's not O.K. for a dutiful mother."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you deprive the sexy Mrs. Jones of her children's custody?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that as a general rule, the sole concern of a court in a divorce action involving the custody of children is the welfare of the children and not the guilt or innocence of the parties to the divorce. To deprive a mother of custody of her children must be based upon clear and convincing evidence that she is an unfit mother. And, in this case, noted the judge, despite her indiscretions, the evidence showed that Mrs. Jones has been a good and loving mother.

How to get daily calcium

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — You often mention the necessity for adults to drink the equivalent of a quart of milk a day. Please tell me how cottage cheese and cheddar cheese compare in terms of ounces to milk for nutritional value. Also, can calcium pills serve the same purpose?

DEAR READER — That remark is in reference to the calcium content of milk. A quart of whole milk contains about a gram of calcium. Fortified low fat and fortified skim milk contain even more calcium. I think most adults need at least a gram of calcium a day.

You can use an equivalent amount of buttermilk or yogurt to get the calcium. A quart of milk is about two pounds. Remember the old adage, "a pint's a pound the world around." In general a pound of cheese; creamed or uncreamed cottage cheese, cheddar cheese, Swiss cheese or American cheese, contains about the same amount of calcium as a pound (pint) of milk.

Since there are many studies suggesting that too much saturated fat can increase your cholesterol and lead to heart disease, it is wise to use fortified skim milk (has more calcium and protein anyway than whole milk), buttermilk or uncreamed cottage cheese. Cheddar, American and similar cheeses are very high in fat and consequently loaded with calories. About half of the fat is saturated fat, so it is not a good choice for a source of calcium if you want to restrict your calories, your fat intake or your saturated fat intake.

Another good source of calcium is canned salmon. A seven-ounce can of salmon, solids and liquids, contains about a half gram of calcium (half of your daily needs). You should eat the bones in the salmon as canned. Sardines with bones contain almost twice as much calcium per ounce. A three-and-a-half-ounce serving will meet about half of the daily one gram recommendation.

Mature bean seeds are a fairly good source. One cup cooked and drained (about 7 ounces) contains nearly a tenth of a gram of calcium.

You don't need to drink all your milk to benefit from its calcium value. You can use milk in food preparation. Milk gravy, puddings and even the milk in bread all count toward meeting the daily calcium needs. And, if you use the nonfat dry milk powder you can add more than the amount called for to reconstitute milk. The added milk powder will increase the calcium and protein in the prepared food without significantly increasing fat or cholesterol. Don't downgrade desserts as all bad. It depends on how they are made, and they are one vehicle that can be used for calcium and protein.

You can get your calcium from tablets. How many tablets you need depends on the type of calcium tablet used. Short of using calcium tablets, milk and milk products remain the main source of calcium for most people. Those who can't use milk for any reason are really handicapped in obtaining their daily calcium needs.

With the installation next week of new cleaning equipment, costing some $3,000, J. M. Pitman, proprietor of Pitman's Tailor Shop, will have assembled and in operation one of the largest and modern cleaning plants in the entire district. The new equiptment is being installed in a specially constructed brick cleaning room at the rear of the new Miller building now being erected on Kingshighway and in which the Pitman shop will be located after September 1.

A hard windstorm, accompanied by lightning, passed over the east central part of Missouri last Saturday, striking Cape Girardeau about 2 o'clock. Many trees in the vicinity were blown down and lightning disabled the electric generating plant of the Missouri Utilities Co., at the Cape.

The old Frisco station will pass out of local being today. Since the occupancy several weeks ago of the splendid new Frisco building, the old frame structure has been undergoing a process of destruction. Three carloads of the remnants were shipped out of Sikeston yesterday and one more carload, all that is left, will go out today. According to W. T. Malone, local Frisco agent, the building is to be reconstructed at Lindenwood, St. Louis, where it will be used as a yard office.

Now! MOTALOY gives your car's rings and valves a replating job while you drive!

HERE'S HOW MOTALOY WORKS!

WINNER OF THE GOLD MEDAL OF THE INTERNATIONAL INVENTORS FAIR

SEE HOW ONLY $6 WORTH OF MOTALOY RECONDITIONS YOUR ENGINE—HELPS PREVENT THE NEED FOR $100 RING & VALVE JOB!

Just drop 4 Motaloy tabs into your gas tank... and you've started your engine rebuilding job! Each tab is a scientifically compounded alloy of 9 metals and elements. As you drive, tiny Motaloy particles are released into the fuel. These Motaloy molecules are carried through the fuel line into the combustion chamber ... where the intense heat of ignition activates them to soften, then remove carbon deposits. Then, Motaloy starts metal-plating pitted and worn surfaces of cylinder walls, piston rings, valve seats, and stems.

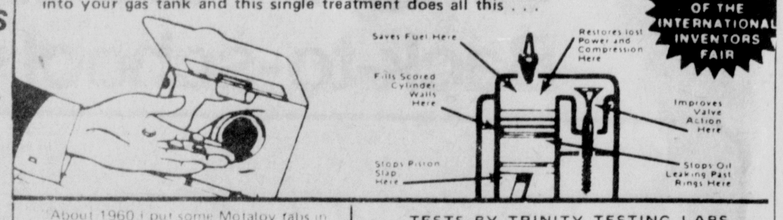
A SINGLE MOTALOY TREATMENT DOES ALL THIS FOR YOUR ENGINE!

The more you drive, the more protection Motaloy deposits in the form of a fine, anti-friction metal plating that rebuids, smooths, and protects vital surfaces! As Motaloy continues to plate and replate, engine compression is increased without a ring and valve job! Gas mileage improves, your engine eats less oil! And over fifteen years of use by over a million motorists — some of them with cars that have clocked over 100,000 miles after a single Motaloy treatment — prove that Motaloy can keep your engine running younger and peppier ... for years longer!

PROTECTS NEW ENGINES... REJUVENATES OLD ONES!

Getting a new car? Start it off with a Motaloy treatment — 6 dollars of protection that can mean invaluable extra engine life for your car. Can actually help maintain full factory compression for the life of your car... so you'll get better performance for years longer ... and a better trade-in or resale price whenever you decide to sell! And Motaloy's track record on cars that have rolled up 50,000 ... 70,000 ... even 90,000 miles shows fantastic results in improved compression, lower gas and oil consumption, better pickup, smoother running — just as if the engine were years younger! Give you car's engine a new ... and longer ... lease on life with amazing Motaloy! Remember — a single Motaloy treatment lasts for the life of your car! And Motaloy cannot harm even the finest engine in any way!

Here's all you do and you do it only once! Just drop 4 Motaloy Tabs into your gas tank and this single treatment does all this . . .



"About 1960 I put some Motaloy tabs in my gas tank, and I have driven this Mercedez-Benz 135,000 miles since!" L.A.M., Sioux City, Iowa

"About 5 years ago I put Motaloy tablets in my Cadillac. I drove this car 125,000 miles and it never used any oil between changes - 1,500-2,000 miles!" V.V.G., Cincinnati, Ohio

"My Chevrolet had 49,000 miles on it. It had noisy valves and other troubles. Motaloy corrected all this. It is running better than new." L.F.M., Walterboro, S.C.

"After using Motaloy in my Chevrolet my compression increased an average of 31½ pounds per cylinder, which to me is conclusive proof that Motaloy will do everything that is claimed for it." W.P.C., Elkview, West Va.

"My Dodge used one quart of oil every 225 miles. After using Motaloy I drove 1,245 miles and did not have to add any oil." G.W., Cincinnati, Ohio

"Since adding Motaloy I have driven more than 1,500 miles, and I must say that I am amazed about the wonderful results. My gas consumption improved 40% and my oil consumption is practically nil." W.G.K., Fort Atkinson, Wash.

TESTS BY TRINITY TESTING LABS PROVE MOTALOY RESULTS!

Radioactive Isotope Tracer Tests Confirm Motaloy's Plating-Action!

...The activation of the Motaloy and the subsequent tracing operations of the activated Motaloy was conducted by an independent research laboratory especially licensed by the Atomic Energy Commission to supervise the industrial application of radioactive isotopes.

Approximate amounts of Activated Motaloy Deposited on the Surfaces (after approx. 60 hours of operation)

Piston Rings	Light
Piston	Light
Cylinder Walls	Light
Intake Valve Face	Very Heavy
Exhaust Valve Face	Heavy
Intake Valve Seat	Heavy
Exhaust Valve Seat	Medium

The above tracing of the radioactive Motaloy is positive proof of the actual transfer of the Motaloy particles from the gasoline tank on to the surfaces of the above surveyed parts of the engine.

TRY MOTALOY AT OUR RISK!

A complete Motaloy package (4 tabs) is only $6.00. Try Motaloy in your car for 30 days, to give its plating action a fair chance. If at the end of that time your car's engine isn't running smoother ... if you aren't using less oil ... if your gas mileage hasn't started to improve (as it will continue to do until you've reached full factory compression) ... if you don't agree that Motaloy has given your engine a new lease on life — just return the empty Motaloy package, and we'll send you back every penny of your purchase price! If you do find Motaloy does all the wonderful things we say it will, tell your friends about it. They'll thank you for spreading the good word!

Household hints

On intricately decorated areas of your wooden furniture, where it may be difficult to apply wax directly, put it on the dust cloth instead. Just moisten the cloth slightly either with a spray or liquid wax, and then polish immediately with a fresh, dry cloth, working if possible with the g rain of the wood.

Wedding bells ring

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith Jr.

Wyman-Smith

ESSEX--Miss Sandra Wyman of Bloomfield and Henry J. Smith Jr., Route One Sikeston, were united in marriage June 20 at the Castor River General Baptist Church. The bridegroom's father officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Wyman, Route Two Essex, and the bridegroom is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Henry Smith Sr., Route One Sikeston.

The bride wore a gown of polyester crepe. The dress was styled with a fitted waistline, a V-neckline accented with ruffles and an inset at the waistline covered with motifs. A full A-line skirt was attached to a cathedral-length train overlaid with re-embroidered organza. Wide cuffs ended full Bishop sleeves of organza.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Juanita Wyman of DeSoto and junior bridesmaid was Lisa McGarity of Essex.

Warnie Smith of Bettendorf, Iowa, was best man and groomsman was Donald Ritch of Gray Ridge. Ushers were Kenneth Anderson of Sikeston and Samuel Wyman of DeSoto.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the church.

Mrs. Smith is a 1966 graduate of Richland High School and received a bachelor's degree in elementary education from Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau in 1970. She teaches at Bloomfield Elementary School.

Smith is a 1964 graduate of Sikeston High School. He received a bachelor's degree in business education in 1972 and a master's degree in teaching business education this year from SeMo State University. He is employed with SeMo Skills Center affiliated with Sikeston Public Schools.

The couple lives on Route One Sikeston.

Teen-aged mothers face many dangers

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Educators from across the country are here this week reviewing the dangerous odds that accompany pregnancies among young teen-agers.

Studies have shown, for example, that the maternal death rate for girls 15 and under is considerably higher than for more mature women; the baby is more likely to be very small; there is a greater likelihood of maternal complications; there is a greater chance of birth defects or developmental problems.

The five-day Institute on Maternal and Newborn Health is being cosponsored by the Center for the Family of the American Home Economics Association and the National March of Dimes foundation.

Dr. Howard N. Jacobson, institute co-chairman and a professor at Rutgers Medical School, said complete prenatal care seems to make a difference in the health of both mother and child. At one Dallas hospital without complete prenatal care, he said, one of every five babies born to mothers under 15 years of age weighed less than 5½ pounds.

He estimated that one or two babies in 100 may be that small where complete services are available.

Nutrition, good medical care and assistance for the mother to stay in school are important factors, he said. "When the circumstance is accepted by the family and she comes in for services worked out in co-operation with her parents and the father, there's a certain amount of emotional security."

Gabriel Stickle, vice president of the National March of Dimes, said society is not placing enough emphasis on prenatal malnutrition. He said the Ford administration is calling for curtailing a federally funded food supplement program for medically indigent women in clinics.

Household hints

To tell whether a custard sauce is done, dip a silver spoon into the hot mixture. If the custard forms a straight line across the spoon, the mixture should be removed from the heat immediately. If the line is wavy, the custard has not thickened quite enough.

The whites from eight large, nine medium or 10 small eggs are needed to make a cup.

Ann Landers

Wife strips before uninvited guests

Dear Ann Landers: Every now and then, a woman writes to complain about her husband bringing home unexpected dinner guests. Usually it's a guy from out of town who just happened to be in his office.

My next-door neighbor read a book recently that gave the perfect solution. It suggested that women who want to pump excitement into a lackluster marriage should greet their husbands at the door wearing nothing but high heels and a string of beads. Or they might wrap themselves in plastic sheeting and tie a large red satin ribbon around "the package."

Any wife who pulls one of these stunts will never again have the problem of an unexpected dinner guest. Sign me -- Positive

Dear Pos: A unique solution, to say the least. Did the book by any chance mention what to do with the children when Mummy does her burlesque numbers?

Dear Ann Landers: I have been putting off writing this letter since November, but after taking one downer, eight aspirins, two uppers and three shot glasses of Scotch whiskey, I decided to go the Ann Landers route.

Last year my best friend convinced me I should stop fooling around with drugs. I did. Four times. But now I'm at it again. For a while I was able to stay off the pills and stick strictly to booze mixed with orange juice. It worked for a while, then I showed up drunk in school one Monday morning, was expelled, and I learned my lesson.

I've tried to kill myself three times. Actually, I don't think I really wanted to die because I never took enough pills to kill me. I t hink maybe I just wanted attention.

There have been times when my friends convinced me that I don't need any of this junk. But after four or five days of being straight, I'm back -- heavy as ever, or worse.

I don't know why I do it. One reason might be because I hate my parents. Another is that I hate myself. I hate my hair. It is falling out and the only answer is a hairpiece -- which I despise -- or a transplant job, and that's too expensive. Can you help me? -- At 14 Messed Up

Dear 14: A boy of 14 with your history needs more than advice from Ann Landers. You are a very sick young man.

If losing your hair is part of your psychological problem, perhaps you should have a transplant. It might even be considered "therapy" and therefore covered by insurance.

I urge you to contact your local Mental Health Center. They are staffed with counselors waiting to help kids like you. But you must let them know you want help. Get moving, and good luck, Son.

Dear Ann: I'm engaged to a fine guy who has a hot temper. He has a habit of hitting or kicking things when he gets angry.

Last week when his baseball team lost, he socked the wall of the stadium and sprained his wrist. Today a motorist cut him off and he knocked his knee on the dashboard and it bled.

What's his problem? Any advice? -- Love Him

Dear Love: That "fine guy" is grossly immature. He handles frustration like a ten-year-old. My advice to him is to get some counseling and learn how to handle anger. My advice to you is stay out of his way until he grows up.

"Sexual freedom" presents a difficult decision for teenagers and their parents. Ann Landers offers down-to-earth advice in her new booklet, "High School Sex And How To Deal With It -- A Guide For Teens And Their Parents." For each booklet, send 50 cents in coin plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. B Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Swimmers painted blue

PARIS (AP) — The mayor of a Corsican fishing village is fighting a rear guard action against the spread of nudism on French beaches this summer but indications are that the advocates of no swimwear, or "zerokinis," will triumph.

Pierre Morganti, mayor of Ogliastro, attracted nationwide attention with his squad of volunteers who chase after nudists on the village beach to daub them with blue paint. Morganti's action has aroused controversy between conservatives who applaud him and others who accuse him of violating civil liberties.

The government of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing has thus far avoided taking a stand on the issue. Chances are it will come down on the side of permissiveness, in line with a recent decision to abolish film and theater censorship and bar only minors under 18 from hard-core pornography.

Despite occasional outbursts of indignation among right-wing Gaullists and in traditionally conservative areas such as Corsica, municipalities all along France's Mediterranean, Atlantic and Channel coasts are one by one giving up the struggle against public nudism.

In a departure from the straight-laced attitudes of his two predecessors, Giscard d'Estaing has let it be known that he does not approve of gendarmes who hide behind sand dunes to ambush nude bathers and march them off to jail. But since local authorities have much freedom in establishing their own by-laws, total nudism is still banned in the biggest and most prominent beach resorts.

More and more of the smaller resorts have stopped trying to chase nudists off their beaches. "The nudists are gaining ground every year," said the mass-circulation France Soir. The paper estimated that 300,000 persons, half of them foreigners, were practicing total nudity on French beaches this summer.

Not so the white sandy beach of Ogliastro and similar bastions of anti-nudism. Mayor Morganti declared nudity an outrage to respectable visitors, and won unanimous approval from the municipal council for his paint-brush-wielding vigilantes.

Dozens have been caught and painted blue this season.

President's son bags wild boars

BONN, West Germany (AP) — President Ford's 23-year-old son Jack bagged four wild boar here during a predawn hunt at a game preserve.

Jack, who is accompanying his father and mother on their 10-day European trip, took part in a hunt at the game preserve owned by Joerg Baron von Holzschuher, owner of the Gymnich Castle where the Fords stayed during their West German visit.

First plane ride no pleasure trip

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Twelve-year-old David Anderson will take his first airplane trip Saturday, but it won't be a pleasure trip.

David, a victim of aplastic anemia, will be flown to Seattle with his mother and a brother in search for a cure.

Providence Hospital in Seattle is one of the few in the country equipped to treat the rare bone marrow affliction, characterized by weakened defenses against infection and hemorrhage.

David, who lives at California, Mo., with his parents and three brothers, has been receiving treatment at the University of Missouri-Columbia Medical Center. Doctors there concluded that his only chance for a cure was a bone marrow transplant.

His three brothers were tested at the medical center, and doctors chose 16-year-old Chris as the bone marrow donor.

On the flight to Seattle with Chris and his mother, Mrs. Paul Anderson, David will be isolated from other passengers because of the danger of infection to him.

"In David's case, the bone marrow is empty," said Dr. Leonard White. "He is not producing white blood cells—platelets. The white cells are nature's defense against infection and the platelets are a factor in clotting. Therefore, infection or hemorrhage must be avoided."

White said there are great risks in the operation and the Anderson family is aware of them. He said about 60 per cent of such bone marrow transplants are successful.

The date of the transplant operation has not been set.

Haywood City receives grant

A preliminary engineering study and report for a complete water system improvement in Haywood City was one of two projects receiving $2,500 federal grants through Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation. Lynn F. Ingram, right, DAEOC board member from Sikeston, presented the two checks totaling $5,000 to Mayor Ed Andrews at Haywood City on July 18. Also present to receive the g rant award were Percy White and Henry Jefferson, members of the Haywood City Board of The second $2,500 grant will be used to finance a comprehensive plan to be conducted for Haywood City by the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission of Malden. The comprehensive plan will provide the village of Haywood City with a long-range program for orderly and efficient physical growth of the community.

Farm bureau criticizes longshoremen

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. July 24, 1975 . . . "What are longshoremen thinking when they refuse to load grain on ships destined for the Soviet Union," questioned Farm Bureau President C. R. Johnston. "It's obvious that the longshoremen leadership is totally unaware of what the facts are." Farm exports have played a major role in improving our balance of payments and for paying the skyrocketing costs of increased oil imports. Farm exports have brought a sharp reduction in government farm program costs for the taxpayer, from $4 billion in 1972 to an estimated $800 million this year, Johnston said.

Farm exports also mean more jobs; some 450,000 people were employed assembling, processing and distributing agricultural exports in the past years. Our farm economy depends heavily on exports said Johnston, and one out of every four harvested acres in Missouri and the export market. There is little worry at this stage that the interests of the American public aren't adequately protected from higher food costs due to the Russian grain sales.

From all indications, adequate supplies of all grain products will be harvbsted this year with enough reserve for carry over in 1976, Johnston said. The U.S. wheat crop is estimated at 2.2 billion bushels this year, a 22 per cent increase over last year's record crop. Our normal domestic need of 800 million bushels plus hte 154.1 million bushels sold to Russia does not even approach our 1975 production.

The West Coast longshoremen have endorsed the expanded exports and they encourate two-way trade between Russia, China and the United States. It looks like the International Longshoremen leadership have their head in the sand.

Sea lampreys, abhorrent to most people, were considered delicacies for centuries. The parasitic fish was a favorite dish of Roman Emperor Vitellius. A medieval French recipe called for stewed lampreys marinated in wine and England's King Henry I reputedly died from eating too much lamprey pie.

World news

HONOLULU (AP) — The three Apollo astronauts, their lungs still congested from inhaling rocket fuel fumes, face a 10-day period of seclusion here because they are vulnerable to infections. Doctors said Sunday they plan to release Thomas Stafford, Donald Slayton and Vance Brand from Tripler Army Hospital on Tuesday, then place them in "semi-isolation." Their wives were to fly here from the Houston area after it was decided exactly where the astronauts would be kept. The isolation period — which had not been mentioned by the doctors until Sunday — is intended to keep the astronauts away from other people, who might expose them to germs that would not harm a healthy person. Dr. Peter Bartelloni, chief of medicine at the hospital, said the toxic gas the crewmen breathed last Thursday has disabled lung cells that normally fight infections. They still cough when asked to breathe deeply, he said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans fed up with rising taxes have rejected proposed school budgets at a record rate this year, defeating spending plans requiring increased levies on property and other items. An Associated Press spot check showed the mood of discontent seemed strongest on the East and West Coasts, although there were signs of rebellion elsewhere. The biggest setbacks came in suburban areas where property taxes already are high. Some of the proposed tax increases ranged up to 2, per cent, with local authorities claiming they needed the money because state aid to education is not keeping pace with inflation. Local taxes on real estate and personal property provide the largest chunk of school funding in many areas and the voter rejections of levy increases have forced authorities to reshuffle budgets and cut spending to keep within existing revenues.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A jury begins deliberations today on whether former Sen. Edward J. Gurney took part in a corrupt scheme to raise money by selling his influence to Florida contractors with federal housing projects pending. Closing arguments concluded Saturday in the 23-week-old bribery-conspiracy trial of the Florida Republican and three others. U.S. District Judge Ben Krentzman told jurors he would instruct them on the law and send them out to deliberate today. Gurney, 61, ex-aide Joseph Bastien, 33, plus Federal Housing Administration officials Ralph Koontz, 51, and K. Wayne Swiger, 61, are charged with conspiracy to raise an illegal $233,000 campaign fund for Gurney by peddling his influence with the FHA.

Dunklin Co. tax study begins

KENNETT — A field representative from the office of State Auditor George W. Lehr arrived in Dunklin County last week to begin collecting information on property assessments.

The information gathered by Ed Brandel will be used to complete Lehr's statewide study of assessments and property tax. The study began March 17, with 79 counties completed so far.

Brandel is one of 12 field representatives working on the project. His work in the county will include a comprehensive interview with County Clerk Billy Horner, as well as gathering information on recent property sales. By September, representatives of Lehr's office will have visited every county in Missouri. Lehr will use the data to make recommentations to the Legislature to improve the property tax system.

The data collected by the field representtatives will go into a "sales-ratio" study of assessments. Among other things, this study will indicate whether property is assessed at the same rate across Missouri, as required by law. While the study will include a report on assessments in each county, its purpose is primarily to look at the overall assessment picture, rather than to evaluate the work of individual assessors.

The field representatives' first task in each county is to identify properties which have been sold. To do this, the representatives will rely on government record, as well as on interviews with bankers, real estate brokers, buyers and sellers, property appraisers and other persons. After identifying sales, the representatives will record such data as sale prices, assessed values, property usage, location and conditions of sale. Using this data, members of the auditor's staff in Jefferson City will be able to prepare their report. Specific information gathered in each county will be kept confidential.

Lehr hopes to finish the study and report to the Legislature and the public no later than December.

Probe of possible irregularities in municipalities insurance practices to begin by attorney general's office

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's attorney general will launch a six-week probe into possible irregularities in the ways some municipalities obtain property and liability insurance.

Atty. Gen. John Danforth said today he has sent a letter tocials in every municipality with a population of more than 500, asking them to provide certain information concerning how they obtain insurance coverage.

"It has come to the attention of this office that some municipalities have followed and are following practices of adopting criteria which... may be anti-competitive" in obtaining insurance coverage, he said in the letter.

Danforth said there have been indications that contracts have been awarded without competitive bids or to local agents exclusively or on a fee-splitting basis. Such practices, he indicated, may violate the state antitrust law.

"We have reason to believe that such questionable practices among municipalities may be widespread and closely parallel similar practiceswhich had been prevalent in Missouri school districts several years ago," Danforth said.

He noted that an inquiry into the situation within school districts brought an end to those practices in 1973, adding that open and competitive bidding could save municipalities 20 to 30 per cent in insurance premium costs.

Danforth said he felt there would be no need to begin grand jury investigations into such allegations if the municipalities provide the answers to his questions within the 30-day time limit.

"During this time of unemployment and skyrocketing inflation, I cannot understand why municipal governments would want to squander taxpayers money by engaging in anticompetitive practices," he said, "and I am confident we can get their full cooperation in stopping the practice."

Sikeston's Little League baseball season is over for all but about 60 athletes who will represent the city in tournament action here at home and on the road through August.

The city league tournaments were completed Friday night and only the Sikeston Standard lived up to its number one seed, claiming the Musial League title by edging the Bank of Sikeston 9-8. Bridger upset Nunnelee 5-4 for the American championship and Kiwanis defeated Pizza Inn 4-2 for the National League crown.

Hitters ruled thefinal night of league action as 112 hits were recorded in the final six games. Warfield connected for the only homerun, hitting that in the Jaycees 14-4 consolation win over A&B Leasing.

Only one field will be occupied by Little Leaguers at the city sports complex tonight as the 9-10 year old invitational gets underway. The Sikeston all-stars battle Portageville in the opener at 6:30 and Dexter meets New Madrid in the nightcap at 8 p.m.

Gibson wins 3rd

..ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bob Gibson may be through, but don't tell it to the Philadelphia Phillies.

The surging Phils, whose bats had been booming, were brought to a grinding halt Sunday by the 39-year-old star of yesteryear in broiling Busch Stadium heat.

"I thought he threw the ball pretty good," Phils center fielder Garry Maddox acknowledged grudgingly following four scoreless innings by Gibson in relief to highlight the 9-6 Cards win.

"He had a good slider, his fast ball was pretty good and he jammed a lot of people with it," added Maddox, who managed one of three singles off the aging Cardinal vet.

Starters John Denny of St. Louis and Jim Lonborg of the Phils wilted early in the hot sun or Gibson might have languished on the sidelines a 19th straight day since pulled from the Cards' starting rotation July 9.

But Denny wavered after his teammates built a 6-4 lead and departed following Bob Boone's single and Tony Taylor's double to open the Philadelphia fourth.

In strode Gibson for his second appearance out of the bullpen since 1965 in time to yield a run-scoring grounder by Dave Cash and Mike Schmidt's sacrifice fly.

Afterward, while bettering Tom Hilgendorf's relief for the Phils, the one-time fireballer permitted only Maddox' infield hit in the fifth and worked safely past singles by Dick Allen and Jay Johnstone in the seventh.

"There's nothing wrong with his arm. He can throw," declared Cards Manager Red Schoendienst, who lifted Gibson for a pinch-hitter after Ted Simmons' 13th homer snapped a 6-6 tie against Hilgendorf, 2-1, in the St. Louis seventh.

"It's just his knees that are bothering him," Schoendienst noted. "I was waiting for an opportunity to use him. We've got six starting pitchers, and they're all tired.

"I told him the other day we might need him because we've got doubleheaders coming up," Schoendienst added. "I told him I didn't know when but I'd let him know."

Gibson, after boosting his record to 3-8 with his first win in a month, related he'd had pregame words with both Schoendienst and General Manager Bing Devine.

"They said their plans were for me to stay here and play ball until the end of the season," he recalled.

"I was going crazy," Gibson admitted. "My spirits were really down. I can't just sit. Even if I knew I wasn't going to pitch any more the rest of the season I don't think I could do it."

Gibson's toil, punctuated by four strikeouts and a walk, impressed but apparently did not alter the judgment of Schoendienst, who will keep the major leagues' winningest active pitcher in reserve.

Asked if Gibson in the foreseeable future would be given a start, the Cards manager replied softly, "I don't see how or when."

Red Sox confident

Break up the Red Sox!!!!.

The boys from Boston are running away with the American League East and they don't expect to be caught from behind.

"I don't think we can blow it," said Manager Darrell Johnson. "These boys just love to play baseball and they play the hell out of it."

"Lose? No chance," said rookie outfielder Fred Lynn. "Well...there's always a possibility but the chances are really slim."

"If we stay healthy, no one is going to catch us," added pitcher Bill Lee. "We have the best ballclub."

The reason for all the optimism was a 1-0, 6-0 sweep of the New York Yankees Sunday, a twin-killing that lifted the Red Sox games ahead of second-place Baltimore in the East Division. Lee and Roger Moret pitched six-hitters as Boston won for the 17th time in the last 20 games.

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland swept a doubleheader from Chicago 10-1, 7-1, Baltimore took two games from Milwaukee 7-4 and 11-6 in 10 innings, California coasted by Minnesota 6-1, Kansas City shaded Texas 2-1 and Detroit split with Cleveland, winning 8-7 and losing 7-2.

Lee, 13-6, outdueled Catfish Hunter, 13-10, in the first game. Lynn reached first on an error by shortstop Jim Mason in the ninth inning, stole second and scored on Rick Miller's single for the game's only run.

Boston had an easier time of it in the nightcap as Jim Rice rapped four hits and drove in two runs, and Carl Yastrzemski hit his 12th home run of the year.

A's 10-7, White Sox 1-1

Vida Blue, 14-8, and Stan Bahnsen, 7-8, pitched eight-hitters and Reggie Jackson and Joe Rudi homered in each game as Oakland upped its lead in the AL West to 9½ games.

Orioles 7-11, Brewers 4-6

Baltimore rallied for six runs in the ninth to tie the second game and five more in the 10th to win it. Doug DeCinces' two-run triple and Al Bumbry's two-run homer keyed the rally in the ninth while Tommie Davis hit a grand slam homer in the 10th.

Angels 7, Twins 6

Dick Lange, 4-3, posted his first complete game victory of the season and had a shutout until Tony Olvia homered in the ninth.

Royals 2, Rangers 1

Steve Busby, 13-8, bested Gaylord Perry, 9-15, as Kansas City won its fifth straight game, four of them under new manager Whitey Herzog.

Tigers 8-2, Indians 7-8

Detroit rallied from a 7-2 deficit to take the opener on Aurelio Rodriguez' tie-breaking triple in the eighth inning.

Cleveland came back in the nightcap behind Fritz Peterson, 5-7, who won for the first time in two months.

Sikeston's Little League football signup Saturday was 'very successful,' according to a league director, but many of last seasons players failed to signup as they are required to in order to be assigned to a team.

"It sems that many of last years players took little note to last week's newspaper story that stated last years players must also register," a league official noted.

In order to give those youngsters who wish to play this fall a chance to do so, league officials have scheduled additional registration for Saturday at the Sikeston High School Field House from 9 to 12.

"We also had a number of youngsters who thought that they signed up last spring in school when a questionaire was sent around wanting to know the number of boys interested in the sport, but these also must register, the league official noted.

Anyone wanting to pre-register should contact C.L. Blanton, III or Mike Taylor.

Smith runs fast

CHARLETON, Ill. (AP) — Ferocious Jackie Smith of the St. Louis Cardinals isn't getting any younger but he may be—of all things—getting faster.

The 6-foot-4 Smith, a tight end ready to start his 13th National Football League season, reported with a horde of veterans to the Cards' camp Sunday and promptly reeled off a 4.6 in the 40-yard dash.

Only wide receiver Mel Gray, renowned for his speed, was faster with a 4.5 recorded before the appreciative eyes of Coach Don Coryell and his staff.

"I can remember only one other time I ran that fast," the 35-year-old Smith, a product of Northwest Louisiana, later drawled, "and that was 10 years ago when I weighed 190. Now I weigh 240."

Two-a-day Cardinal drills were scheduled to resume for the full squad today, with only linebacker Pete Barnes missing because of a late start from his San Diego home.

The Cardinals said veteran center Ken Iman was released because of failing to pass his physical exam before veteran players reported over the weekend.

In St. Louis the 36-year-old Iman, whom the Cards obtained in April from the Los Angeles Rams in exchange for a future draft choice, said he will probably retire.

Leading hitters for Vanduser over the weekend was Basil Mays, David Pobst and Howard Abner. Vanduser has won 11 straight and is 31-10 on the season and goes to Cape Girardeau Wednesday night for a battle with the A's.

In the frozen Alaskan wilderness, a welder completes a section of the 800-mile-long trans Alaska pipeline (top left). Riggers direct a crane lifting 80-foot-long double-jointed sections of the 48-inch pipe (top center) onto railroad flatcars for shipment to Fairbanks (top right). To facilitate shipping, the pipes are sent in 40-foot lengths which are then welded together (left). Explosives are used to open trenches in which half of the pipeline will be buried (right). Bonnie Pruden Says: Find Time To Exercise

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Physical fitness is a family thing, according to Bonnie Prudden, who has spent 30 years working out flexible exercises to make it easy.

"Aging is not so much a matter of years but of lack of fitness," she said in an interview here. "As you get older, it's more difficult to keep fit but when you exercise every single day it helps keep you young."

In 1954, Mrs. Prudden reported to President Dwight D. Eisenhower that 54 per cent of young school children she tested had flunked a basic fitness test, more than half again as many as had failed the test in Europe.

"Today, 85 per cent of young children fail that same test," she added. "Despite increased interest in gymnastics and in games like tennis, it's still natural athletes who excell in school physical education. Needs of other children are for the most part ignored."

The fitness expert warned that too many parents say their children don't wish to exercise, and therefore should not. Children, she said, do not always know what they want. The basics of fitness should be taught so they can build on them later on.

Her short, blonde hair in a pixie cut, Mrs. Prudden's face and figure belie her 61 years and her pride in the achievements of her children and grandchildren. She lives in Stockbridge, Mass., where she heads the Bonnie Prudden Institute for Physical Fitness.

"I grew up in a time when children walked four to 10 miles each day, skated, skiied, climbed trees. Today, children have little opportunity for those things," she said.

The answer, Mrs. Prudden said, is an exercise program in which an entire family participates. Her new book, "How To Keep Your Family Fit and Healthy," studies ways fitness can be made easy.

"We lived with a family — all three generations — for a year working this program out, and we took more than 2,000 pictures from which we selected 500 for the book. Nothing in there is difficult," she added.

The result is a total fitness regime to help individuals keep their muscles flexible.

"People don't realize there's an exercise answer for everything, a way of handling most all problems. There are exercises to reduce tension, or to keep a driver from becoming stiff if he's behind the wheel for a long period."

People who say they have no time for exercise are wrong, Mrs. Prudden said. They have no time to stop exercising and keeping their muscles flexible and elastic.

"Whatever your lifestyle, you have only one body. It must be cared for," she added.

("How To Keep Your Family Fit and Healthy" is published by Readers Digest Press.)

Re-enlistment bonus bill vetoed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—The high cost forced Gov. Christopher S. Bond to veto a bill today that provided for re-enlistment bonuses for Missouri National Guardsmen.

The bill, which would have cost more than $600,000 a year, would have provided a bonus of $100 a year for each year a guardsmen re-enlisted up to a maximum bonus of $600.

Bond also vetoed a bill that would have created the Missouri Forest Research Council, contending that it violated the intent of state reorganization.

That measure would have set up a five-member independent board, appointed by the governor to promote development and research in Missouri forestry. State reorganization, approved by the voters in 1972 and implemented last July, abolished the independence of numerous boards and councils, placing them under the control of one of the state departments.

Marriage of Rolfe and Pocahontas.

Business With His Father-In-Law...

□ Her main fame in history came from the day she threw herself across the bared head of Captain John Smith and prevented her father, the mighty Indian ruler, Powhatan, from bashing his brains out.

But Pocahontas was to have a larger, if less publicized, role in the development of America. After Smith returned to England, the Indian maid married a young settler named John Rolfe.

Powhatan took his son-in-law into the business and had him taught the Indian secrets of growing tobacco. Rolfe improved the tobacco strain by importing milder seeds from the West Indies. Suddenly, Virginia tobacco was the rage of the European markets.

The rush to grow the golden leaf brought settlers by the thousands, pushed back the wilderness and hastened the development of Virginia and the American Colonies.

Pocahontas and Powhatan? They were sculpted in wood and placed in front of thousands of tobacco shops.
